Some parents fear new uniform policy

"(Some) parents are not necessarily against uniforms, but just against this particular policy. I really feel most parents think uniforms are OK, but they don't know about this policy."

They worry teachers will be 'uniform police'

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

In response to the implementation of a school uniform policy for next year, some concerned parents within the Hancock County School District have organized a public forum for Feb. 26.

The meeting has been scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Hancock Middle School.

Lydia Jelinski, a parent of three

Hancock students, will serve as mediator.

"It will be a controlled environment where people can pose concerns and questions," she said.

Jelinski said Superintendent of Education David Kopf is expected to attend the forum, and she hopes

PRCC approves Hancock lease

THE SEA COAST ECHO Pearl River Community College's Board of Trustees approved a lease agreement to establish a satellite educational center in Hancock County during the regular February meeting Tuesday in Poplarville.

The three-year lease is with Rubin Management, a Los Angeles-based development company, which purchased the vacant Wal-Mart building on U.S. 90 in Waveland and plans to convert the 70,000 square-foot building into a mixed-use shopping center.

PRCC's lease is for 6,000 square feet of space, which would be converted into three classrooms, a conference room and office space.

"We are very excited about establishing a presence in Hancock County and increasing our education programs in this area," said PRCC President Dr. William Lewis. "Hancock County is one of the fastest growing counties in the state."

Lewis said plans are to have a coordinator in place by the end of March, open the center in May,

Hearing set on Navy live fire range

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Will a proposed training facility for Naval Special Warfare Operations Forces be a positive addition to Hancock County? Residents will have the chance to decide for themselves on Tuesday evening at the first of two public hearings the Navy will hold to present the results of the draft environmental impact statement recently completed by Turner Collie and Braden Inc.

Tuesday's hearing will be held at the Hancock County Court House at 7 p.m. Wednesday's hearing will be held at the Slidell City Auditorium at 7 p.m.

Hancock and surrounding counties will see a gross revenue loss of about $1,107,500 if the facility is undertaken, representing a loss of $77,748 in state tax revenue and a loss of $21,000 in county tax revenue. Gross revenue losses will be a result of the cessation of sand and gravel operations, $954,000; timber operations, $79,000; turf farm operations, $79,000 and the closing of Camp Tawiki, $39,300. These operations, located in the 5,200 acre proposed training site, all in the Stennis Buffer Zone, will be closed down permanently.

Navy consultants say that depending on the training scenario they undertake, the area will see increased revenues of anywhere between $200,000 to $2.5 million based on fuel sales at Stennis International Airport and goods and services associated with personnel at the training facility. With any operation, the county will regain about $3,000 of lost tax revenues.

Two cemeteries in or adjoining the training area will not be impacted by operations, say consultants. Turtle Skin Cemetery and Isadore family Cemetery are in the area. Isadore Cemetery, which will be completely in the training area, will be fenced.

Families will have access to the cemeteries when it is safe, they say.

Programs for the continuation of hunting and fishing activities, in accordance with state laws will be initiated, say consultants. Retired Master Chief Kenny Kopsco said that special operations forces will observe the same courtesies that are now in effect such as no training operations on the opening day of hunting season. Training typically occurs on a Monday through Thursday schedule and will continue on that schedule, Kopsco said. Special operations forces now train for about 25 weeks a year and are looking to add 11 additional weeks of training to that schedule. They also are seeking to increase helicopter operations both on land and in water scenarios. Noise would be consistent with current training, consultants said. The Navy is also proposing to use unmanned riverine and aerial surveillance craft as part of the training operations.

No live ammunition (actual bullets) will be used in the training operations at any time. All live ammunition training takes place at another facility. At the Stennis facility the Navy is proposing the use of SRTA up to 0.50 caliber plastic, non-lead, non-explosive projectile with a limited flight profile. The safety perimeter for this type of ammunition is about 120 acres with a range of about a half a mile.

Before conducting riverine operations patrols would caution recreational boaters, consultants said. Delays to recreational boaters should never be more than 15 to 20 minutes, they say. Other safety advisory signs will be placed along the perimeter of the training area. Because of the precise nature of special operations training area wildlife and vegetation should be minimally impacted, Kopsco said. Targets, not trees will receive the fire from training ammunition, he said.

Which of These Costly Homeseller Mistakes Will You Make When You Sell Your Home?

Hancock County, a new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of home sellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market. As this report uncovers, most homeowners make 7 deadly mistakes that could cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

14 credible abuse claims reported against MS priests

BY MATT VOLZ
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Over the past 50 years, 14 Mississippi priests have had credible accusations of sexual abuse made against them, the state's two Catholic dioceses say.

None of the priests is currently in active ministry, according to the dioceses of Jackson and Biloxi.

The dioceses prepared the information for a survey commissioned by the national church from the John Jay College of Justice. It is a nationwide accounting of abuse claims and costs to the country's 195 dioceses.

The report is scheduled for release Feb. 27.

Ten priests were from the Jackson diocese. In a prepared statement to The Associated Press, the diocese said a number of other accusations have been made against clergy working in the diocese. Two allegations were found to be "incredulous" and one was inconclusive, the statement said.

A total number of accusations, credible, not credible and inconclusive, has not been calculated, said Steve Carmody, a diocesan lawyer.

Nearly $96,000 was paid by the Jackson diocese from 1981 to mid-2002 for counselling to victims, and $13,679 was paid in legal fees for that period, the diocese said. Detailed financial records before 1981 could not be found, according to the diocese.

The Biloxi diocese says in the 26 years of the diocese's existence, there have been substantiated accusations made against four priests involving eight victims.

A total of $14,000 has been paid by the diocese for counseling to assist victims, the diocese said.

"It is a tragedy that innocent victims have suffered so deeply. It is also a tragedy that 2 percent of the clergy have tarnished the reputations of the other 98 percent. The overwhelming percentage of clergy are good men of God who deserve our thanks and our support," Bishop Thomas J. Rodi said in a written statement to the AP.

The Biloxi diocese did not release the number of unsubstantiated claims of abuse.

In a recent survey of dioceses conducted by the AP, 80 of 195 diocese nationwide reported that 1,341 clergy members have been accused of molesting minors. Those 80 said they have spent $186.1 million to settle or litigate cases, fund counseling or cover expenses.

Mark Belenchia, co-coordinator of the Mississippi branch of the Survivors Network of Those Abused by Priests, said he believes the survey is a good beginning.

But, he said, while the church is focused on spitting its public image, it continues to fight legal challenges by claiming church autonomy and statute of limitations as defenses.

Belenchia and an anonymous plaintiff alleged sexual abuse at the hands of priests in the Jackson diocese. Their lawsuit was dismissed last year after a judge ruled time had run out for them to file suit.

"People have been raped, sodomized and their lives ruined. (Church leaders) don't want to have a discussion with them," Belenchia said.

Both Mississippi dioceses last month were found to be compliant with church policies meant to keep priests from sexually abusing children.

Skate park grows into tourist attraction

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

Beginning next week, motorists driving down Highway 90 in Waveland will know without a doubt that Hancock County is home to a premium skate park.

From now on, skaters will be visible to the general public as they utilize their new outdoor facilities at South Coast Skate Park on 118 Auderer Blvd. Representatives of True Ride, a professional skate park building company based in Minnesota, helped move ramps from indoors to outdoors this week.

Kelly Welsh, owner of the skate park, said the move took about six days. His reason for turning it into an outdoor park was simple.

"I want the curb appeal," he said. "There will be no question that we have a skate park and a great new ramp layout that is the best anywhere. People will know it's a skateboard park and not a skating rink."

In order to gain this visibility, Welsh had to temporarily sacrifice a controlled indoor climate. He plans to build a pavilion type structure over the park in a year or so. When designing the outdoor park, Welsh said he took the old layout and asked skaters their opinions. From there,

This 20,000-square-foot space which once housed the South Coast Skate Park will be transformed into an indoor flea market, which is scheduled to open March 5.

he took the plans into his own hands.

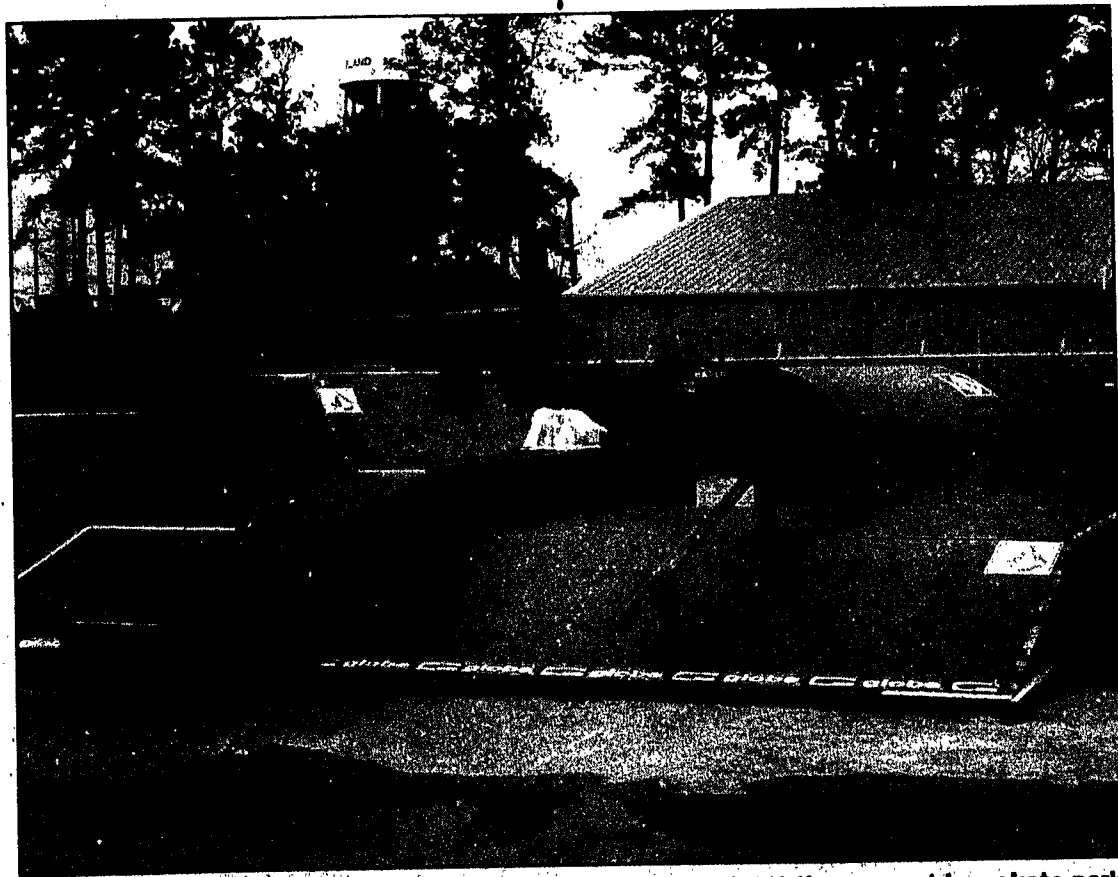

"I think South Coast Skate Park is on its way to being a hub in the United States as far as great demo and competition skate park," he said.

The previous 20,000-square-foot building which housed the park will be used as an indoor flea market, Welsh said.

"I think an indoor flea market of this size will be great for this area in Hancock County," he said. "It will hopefully create more small businesses in the area."

Welsh estimates the market will house approximately 100 booths. To date, about 30 booths have been rented. The target date for the flea market's opening is March 5. For more information about the skate park and/or the flea market, call 228-467-8003 or www.southcoastxtremesports.com.

Transplanted ramps await final positioning as workers construct the new outdoor skate park in Waveland.

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

Nereids roll today!

Remember, 1 p.m. is the starting time for the Krewe of Nereids followed by Eros and Krewe of Hancock.

The parade forms at the Kmart Shopping Center, travels East on Highway 90 to Bouslog (by post office) then turns West on Highway 90 to Waveland Avenue where it disbands.

Some 100 units are expected for to Sunday afternoon parade.

Nereids is one of the largest parades along the coast and has many, many spectators.

The City of Waveland is concerned about the safety of all spectators. For this, there are several things viewers must remember, no silly string, or snap and pops, creatures classified as reptiles, snakes, etc. animals of any kind on the parade route, leased or not or glass products or containers are not allowed.

The riding of bicycles, skateboards or skates are not allowed on the parade route.

This is not just for the Nereids parade. Also one of my suggestions to parade goers is this, take along a container to place your litter.

Those plastic bags you receive from merchants are very light and easy to carry.

Even if you just fill the bags and tie the top, that is less trash the cities have to roundup.

If there are trash barrels in the area where you view the parade, please use them too.

The cleanup is a massive job following the parades each year.

Do not forget the Diamondhead Krewe of Selena and Royal-T parade which is set to roll at 6:30 this evening at Diamondhead. It begins at Burger King, proceeds through the business district, the Golf Club Drive to the Country Club.

We still have more area parades to come next weekend and Mardi Gras day.

On Thursday, the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club will once again have its Annual Spaghetti Lunch and Dinner fund raiser.

This year it will be held at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church's Community Center, Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis.

Lunch will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and Dinner, from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Meals are for a donation of $6.50 each and there will be dine, or take out, or you can call the Delivery Hotline at 304-1112 for Free Delivery. Orders are now being taken, just leave a message on the Hotline and you call will be returned.

David Mayley is the Bay Rotary's fund raiser chairman and is assisted by club members.

The Trapani's family recipe is being used in the preparation of the spaghetti and meatballs.

Tickets are available at The Sea Coast Echo's office, or from a member of the club, or at the door.

Proceeds for the dinner will be used by the Bay Rotary for community projects.

MS bases should be 'Open and Ready'

If U.S. military bases are to be closed, jobs lost, and lives changed, which communities should feel the heat first - those in an increasingly unsupportive Western Europe, or in patriotic, tax-paying towns in Mississippi? Well, I'm more worried about the plight of folks in Heidelberg, Mississippi, than in Heidelberg, Gennany. The well being of America's taxpayers, our domestic economy and homeland security should take precedence. Most domestic military bases should remain open and ready.

Base closure isn't partisan, but it's political. The question is where and how do we want the politics to play out - in Congress, where people in Mississippi and other affected states can take part in the process via their elected officials, or before an exclusive, closed and unelected commission called the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC). Do we want local communities hiring more high-dollar, taxpayer-funded lobbyists to influence the BRAC? Or would we prefer our Congress to make the tough closure decisions free of charge. Here, too, the answers are clear. Base closure is not really an initiative for high-rent lobbyists and fleeting commissions to perform. Congress and the people we represent should participate in the debate and carry out the hard work of base closure. This is consistent with America's tradition of open, representative government, civilian control of the military and taxpayer accountability. It's the way base closure was done for more than 200 years before BRAC, and you'll see Mississippi's delegation challenge BRAC at every turn this year and next.

To date, we've got a perfect record. Mississippi's bases have remained open through three BRAC rounds during the 1990s, and we don't plan to start losing in 2005 when another BRAC round is scheduled. However, even if BRAC does move forward as scheduled, Mississippi's military installations are well positioned to fend off closure. Since the last BRAC round in 1995, Mississippi's delegation has secured billions for our state's bases, mostly in three areas: mission diversification, housing

Letters to the Editor

Support Historic Preservation in BSL

I have been reading the recent letters to the editor from people who have voiced their objections to the proposed historic commission & adoption of historic guidelines & designated areas.

I am an owner and lover of old houses and want to help keep our history alive. I love the many sets of cypress French doors in my home and the gently sloping thresholds worn down by the many footsteps of previous owners. I makes me feel a part of the tapestry of the lives of those who went before me. I hope some day that someone will ask the same questions about my family history. Thus continuing that creative thread that weaves its way through the story of civilization. Every old house has a story. It's painful to see old houses razed as they are often community landmarks and make the past present for all to see. These wonderful old structures embody ethnic traditions and local customs and remind us all of the advances in building technology. If we do not honor them and learn from the past, they say we will be forced to relive it. Old houses evoke a sense of tradition and security, of closeness to the land and to the people who built them.

Several years ago, a very old house in the first block of State Street was torn down. Many people had attempted to buy it for restoration but were unsuccessful. Now it is a vacant lot. We need protection for our history.

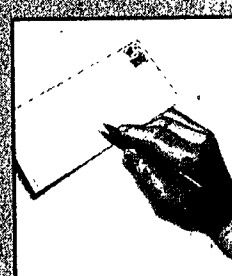

The description and documentation of our heritage and history are a vital part of historic preservation. Historic preservation also fosters an appreciation of our diverse cultural heritage.

The economic benefits of historic preservation are also important.

Historic preservation provides an avenue to enrich and revitalize our lives and communities. It creates jobs, revitalizes downtown areas stimulates business and ultimately makes communities more

No duplex at Bay Oaks

Dear Editor:
Imagine our surprise when reading an article on page 3A of your paper, to discover that the Bay Council had agreed to fund a study concerning one small lot located in the 200 block of Bay Oaks Drive. Wonder how much that will cost? It seems a petition was presented to the council concerning a duplex planned for that lot. That is a lie. No one has ever asked us what our plans were for this lot, they just assumed. However, WE HAVE ALWAYS PLANNED TO build a SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE COMPATIBLE WITH THE OTHER HOMES IN THE NEIGH-BORHOOD. We do not know why someone would spread such rumors about us as we live around the corner and would not want in any way to damage the character of the neighborhood. It is a shame that someone had to go behind our back and not just ask us. Please let the residents of Bay Oaks Drive and Bay St. Louis know that we do not want taxpayers money used for a study of this tiny lot.

We do not plan to build a duplex, and we know this money could be used in a way that would better benefit the City.

Thank you,
Nick and Petie Hyman

upgrades, and equipment upgrades - all modernizations which will help shield these installations from closure. Mississippi's bases have survived closure rounds in 1991, 1993 and 1995, not because of what we hope they are, but for what they really are - important, longstanding and proven installations that enjoy strong community support and provide our military with flexibility, room for growth and high quality joint operations and training. The same can't be said about every base in every state, and we especially can't say the same about some bases overseas.

America is at war but not just any war. We're fighting terrorists who have global reach, including to our own homeland. The fight against terrorism is being waged by pilots trained in Columbus and Meridian, soldiers who drilled at Camp Shelby and engineers, seabees and technicians who honed their skills at Gulfport, Biloxi and Pascagoula. For the first time since World War II, America is engaged in a sweeping domestic security effort in which our stateside military bases can play a pivotal role. To close domestic installations - especially Mississippi's busy training bases - would be very short-sighted, given the current array of global and domestic threats.

The Pentagon needs to reduce excess infrastructure. Nobody disputes that. However, I'd like to see a Congressionally-based process unfold where we work in conjunction with the Pentagon to identify areas of excess military capacity - not necessarily bases, but programs and operations - and, from there, determine what facilities would be considered for closure. That will eliminate a very flawed process where all bases are put in the closure pot, and are pitted against one another, forcing local communities to spend money trying to influence the BRAC, even when their local facilities are not really endangered.

If we can't have a better base closure process than the BRAC, then we should start the next round of base closures overseas. In Western Europe America still has bases and infrastructure awaiting a Soviet specter that is more than a decade departed. Americans are growing weary of financing the defense of increasingly uncooperative Western European nations. Given current Western European political posturing and the global terror threats, in the coming decades we may need our domestic military bases more than ever. We should make every effort to put American communities first and to keep our domestic bases open and ready.

Hancock sneaks past Bay 49-45 in girls hoops

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

If you were a fan at the Wilmer Seymour Gymnasium on the campus of Bay High School on Friday, February 13, then you got your money's worth plus some. Perhaps the best girls basketball game played this year took place in that gym between the defending 4A state champion Bay High Lady Tigers and the perennial 5A power Hancock Lady Hawks.

In the previous two meetings during the season, the #6-ranked Lady Hawks and #7-ranked Lady Tigers each won one game. The rubber match was won by Hancock 49-45 but at a tremendous cost of blood, sweat and tears. Hancock head coach Pam Slayton commented, "We knew that it would come down to who had the ball last. This was just an outstanding basketball game from both teams. Bay High had a good strategy and so did we. The crowd and the atmosphere for the game was tremendous. This was a great game for both teams as they prepare for a playoff run. Both teams got to concentrate and focus on plans for the playoffs and the fans were able to see some really good basketball."

Hancock (23-3) jumped out to a quick 4-0 lead behind baskets from Petra Vackova and Ashley Boehnel. Sara Gilmore put Bay High (22-5) on the board with a free throw at the 5:16 mark. Hancock's Prep All-American and SLU signee Brooke Necaise pushed the Lady Hawks lead to 9-3 with consecutive baskets at the 2:34 mark. However, Bay High closed the gap to 13-11 by the end of the period with a 7-4 run.

The Lady Hawks continued to pack in a tight zone defense in the paint and force the Lady Tigers to take the outside shot in the second period. Hancock increased their lead to 22-15 when Erica Moran banked a basket in with 4:48 left in the first half. But, the Lady Tigers proved their mettle in the final minutes of the half with a 7-2 run to close the score to 24-22 at halftime. Actually, Bay High tied the game at 22-22 with Kendra Reed at the charity stripe. Then, Courtney Craft gave Hancock the slight lead at intermission on a basket with :04 left to play. In rivalry games, strategy is as important as emotion and both teams had plenty of it. However, in the third period Bay High came out on fire. Hancock got two quick baskets from Moran and Boehnel to increase their lead to 29-22 with 6:31 left in the third.

Then, Bay High went on a 12-0 run and left Hancock scoreless for over four minutes. Kendra Reed started the run with an inside move to the basket. Gilmore got open on the wing and drained a long bomb to make the score 29-27 with 5:04 left.

Felicia Thomas gave Bay High their first lead of the game at the 3:57 mark with a trey at the top of the key which was followed by a Gilmore free throw and another Thomas basket from beyond the arc. The run put Bay High up 34-29.

Hancock ran off six straight points on two shots by Moran and one by Necaise to take the lead back 35-34 with 1:28 left. However, Reed gave the Lady Tigers a 36-35 lead at the end of three periods of play with a basket in the paint.

The fireworks in the third period only set up a blazing finale in the fourth and final period.

There were seven lead changes in the fourth period alone and five of the lead swaps came in the first two minutes of the period.

Each team played basket-for-basket until the 5:31 mark when Hancock got consecutive baskets from Craft and Boehnel to go up 45-42. On the next trip down the court, Thomas tied the game for Bay High with a three-pointer with 1:24 left in the game.

Hancock went to a keep-away mode and looked for the last shot. Petra Vackova got a basket in the paint to give Hancock the basket lead 47-45 with :24 left to play. A turnover by Bay High forced a foul situation with :07 left on the clock and Hancock going to the line for a 1-and-1.

Moran missed the front end but Boehnel got the rebound and was fouled immediately with :02 left. She sank both charity shots to ice the win for Hancock 49-45.

Bay High head coach

Debbie Triplett stated, "I thought we played hard all game; however we did not shoot particularly well early on. We had some chances late in the game but we just couldn't get our hands on the ball. This game was good for us to get our focus right. The atmosphere was a playoff-type setting and the crowd was very vocal."

Ashley Boehnel led the Lady Hawks with 11 points followed by Brooke Necaise and Petra Vackova with 10 points each. Erica Moran added 9 points in the win.

Felicia Thomas led Bay High with 14 points followed by Destiny Porter with 13 points and Kendra Reed with 11 points. Sara Gilmore added 7 points in the loss.

In the boys game, the Bay High Tigers defeated the Hancock Hawks 63-40.

Bay High head coach Alan Lumpkin stated, "We got Hancock's A-game tonight. They got after us and pushed us hard. Now, we need to focus on our division tournament that starts next week. We have to play better defense than we have for the past three or four games to be successful in the tournament. In our division, whoever plays the best defense next week will be in line to win the championship."

Bay High jumped out to a 24-13 lead in the first period and stretched that to 39-21 by halftime.

The Tigers (18-8) were led by Marquez Singleton with 16 points followed by Javon Williams with 12 points and George Easley with 11 points. Josh Malone led Hancock (4-16) with 14 points followed by Jonathan Moran with 12 points.

In basketball action earlier in the week, the Hancock Lady Hawks defeated the Lady Indians of Biloxi 66-17. Hancock jumped out to a 21-2 lead and never looked back. Brooke Necaise led Hancock with 18 points followed by Courtney Craft with 12 points.

In the boys game, Biloxi defeated Hancock 85-51. Stephen Pollard and Sean Best each scored 13 points to lead Hancock.

The Division 8 Class 4A tournament will be held at Bay High February 16-20 while Hancock travels to Oak Grove for their division tournament.

PRCC baseball program gets weight room donation

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Businessman Barry Harper recognizes a good thing when he sees it, and, in his opinion the Pearl River Community College baseball program under coach Jay Artigues is a big plus for the two-year college.

That's why Harper, president of Barry Harper Dodge and Harper-Towne RVs of Poplarville, elected to donate the funding to equip a new weight room that was recently added to the baseball team's dressing room facility.

"My dad was a high school football coach for 32 years, so I was always around sports," said Harper. "And my son, Andy, played two years for coach Artigues. We have become good friends. He has got a first-class nationally-ranked baseball program, and that inspired me to help them."

Artigues says a new weight room will help his players become stronger.

"This weight room will help our players develop physically," said Artigues.

"We can already see improvements strength wise."

"It will also help our players use their time more wisely. They can hit the weight room right after class and have more time for their studies."

He is thankful for Harper's generosity.

"This weight room will elevate our facilities to one of the top facilities in the country," said Artigues. "There's not many baseball programs in the country at any level that have a baseball-only weight room."

"Barry Harper has been extremely supportive and generous with our baseball program, and because of his donation this has enabled us to move to another level."

Artigues and the Wildcats have started pre-season practices for the 2004 season, which begins Feb. 14-15, with a weekend series at home against Bossier Parish, La.

Artigues is beginning his third season at PRCC. His overall record is 80-26. In his first season, the Wildcats capped their first-ever berth in the NJCAA Division II World Series.

PRCC tennis preview

The Pearl River Community College men's and women's tennis teams kicked off the 2004 season Friday when the Wildcats traveled to Gulf Coast Community College.

PRCC tennis coach Camille Soulier expects this year's team to be vastly improved over last year's team. "We will definitely have more depth this year than we had last year," she said. "It's not only in the area of depth, but the variety of players. They are all good players, but more importantly, good students. They are very encouraging toward each other, but they are also very competitive against each other."

The men's team returns three sophomores, including Chris Dewease and Clint Ellis of Petal, and Kevin Miller of Forrest County AHS. The other men's players include sophomore Scotty Fletcher of Petal, and freshmen Bubba Dedeaux of Oak Grove, and Kevin Martin and Jacob Hutson of Petal.

"Right now, Miller is our No. 1 in singles and doubles, but I expect Dedeaux to challenge for that No. 1 spot," said Soulier. "Our guys have the potential to be one of the top four teams in the state."

The lone returning player for the women's team is sophomore Danica Wallace of Poplarville. The remaining members of the women's team include sophomore Britney Carter of Poplarville, and freshmen Lacy Holmes and Deanna Beasley of West Marion, Jena Tetzlaff and Holly Braswell of Poplarville, Tiffany Carr of Picayune via Lebanon, Tenn., and Jana Camp of Presbyterian Christian School.

Soulier says Holmes is the No. 1 singles player. "Overall, I think we could be a contender for the state and regionals because of our depth," she said.

Soulier, a former star player at McNeese State University, is beginning her seventh season at PRCC. She was the Mississippi Tennis Association's Female Player of the Year in 1995 and Region 23 co-coach of the year in 2000, the year the Wildcats shared the state championship with Gulf Coast.

The Wildcats play their first home match Feb. 17 against Hinds.

Uniforms -- new Hancock Schools policy

board members will attend as well.

Concerned parents, she said, hope to discuss several issues about the policy during the forum. One concern is that teachers will become "uniform police," which could interfere with classroom instruction. Jelinski said parents also want to address the seemingly strict disciplinary measures for non-compliance of the policy and where funds will come from for families who have difficulties complying with the uniform requirements.

A board member pointed out the policy states that "the principal may be able to offer suggestions to the parents regarding assistance from various community and civic groups or agencies."

"(Some) parents are not necessarily against uniforms," she said, "but just against this particular policy. I really feel most parents think uniforms are OK, but they don't know about this policy."

Jelinski got involved after her husband wrote a letter to the editor which appeared in the Jan. 29 issue of The Sea Coast Echo and after she attended a recent school board meeting.

In his letter, Jim Jelinski accused the board of "quietly working on a policy to impose school uniforms."

However, a district-wide survey was conducted in 1999 revealing that 74 percent of the parents were in favor of school uniforms.

Board president Peggy Ladner said the issue has been "an on-again, off-again topic of discussion" since she joined the board.

Lydia Jelinski, however, argued because the survey was taken in 1999 that new parents and parents of students in kindergarten through third grade were not included in the survey.

On Oct. 2, 2003, the policy appeared on the agenda for presentation only.

"There is always a period of at least 30 days between the presentation of a policy and the actual vote on a policy," Ladner said.

During the Nov. 6 meeting, the board passed the uniform policy with a vote of 4-1, with Larry Peterson voting against it. The Sea Coast Echo then published a story on Nov. 9 about the board's decision to implement the uniform policy beginning with the 2004-2005 school year.

Most recently at the Feb. 5 meeting, the board voted 3-2 to approve only revisions to the policy.

"One of the board members wished to keep the policy as it was, and therefore voted 'no' to the revisions only," Ladner said.

Currently, the district is in the process of preparing displays for each school site and the central office, which will display the actual uniforms for parents to view, Ladner said.

She said a detailed copy of the policy addressing shoes, sweatshirts and all other items, is available and will be sent home with students. Ladner said the basic uniform is, in general, what most of the county's neighboring school districts are using.

The Sea Coast Echo contacted the Pearl River County School District and Poplarville's central office. A Pearl River County official said uniforms were implemented at the elementary level this year and will spread to the middle school and high school levels next school year.

Uniforms, an official said, are currently being discussed for Poplarville schools.

quality Catholic education to come in and see what we are about."

"Like all rumors, this one should be put to rest," said Monsignor James McGough, who speculated that a recent study on area parochial schools performed by an education commission from the education department of Catholic University, of the Biloxi Diocese, may have inadvertently spurred the rumors.

A goal of the study was to research ways to make Diocese schools, particularly high schools more efficient and to recommend ways that schools could more effectively reach their goal of joining quality education with religious study. The commission study was quite complete and did recommend the joining of St.

John's with Mercy Cross, McGough said, but that goal is years down the road.

St. Clare seeks to provide this quality education in the setting of a Catholic community where teaching students the special value of every human being is coupled with modern technology labs, competitive curriculum, and test score above the state and national average, said Cumella.

"I speak of St. Clare as a community because there is a community effort here," said he said.

The parish has a program of sponsorship for students who wish to attend the school, but cannot afford the tuition, Cumella said.

Currently the school has an enrollment of about 140 students with a student teacher ratio of about 12 to one. When filled, the school can accommodate about 200 children, Cumella said.

The school is actively seeking to expand its enrollment.

Open registration for the next school year begins on February 16.

Cumella came to the school this year after 13 years of service at St. Stanislaus as a teacher, assistant admissions director, and director of recruiting.

McGough came to St. Clare two years ago from St. James parish in Gulfport to replace Father Noel Fannin.

St. Clare parish was established in 1919, with the current church built in 1957. The school opened in 1964 and is open to both Catholic and non-Catholic students.

and offer some academic classes as soon as this summer.

Hancock County, which is also home to Stennis Space Center, is one of six counties that make up PRCC's district.

The center initially will offer mostly core academic courses, the standard offerings such as English, American History or math that students are required to take in pursuit of a two-year associate degree. But Lewis said the curriculum likely would expand over the years, specializing in certain professions, such as nursing, or tailored to meet worker training requirements of local industries.

"We would like to see some technical kinds of things offered there," he said. "But that can be very expensive, so we might have to wait until the economy rebounds."

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is providing the money for PRCC's move. The county gives the community college two annual payments: 1.35 mills, or about $480,000, for general operations and maintenance and a half-mill, or about $203,000, now earmarked for the local educational center.

Ultimately, the college hopes to establish a regional campus in Hancock County where residents could take a wide variety of courses. The move, however, is likely some years off, due largely to funding constraints, Lewis said.

resident at a condo in Diamondhead for about ten months," Roan said. "On Feb. 4, he was out with a brother in Gulfport, who returned him to his residence around 9 p.m. His brother on Feb. 6, visited his condo around 10:30 p.m. and waited for him until 1 a.m., when he notified the sheriff's department."

Prior to visiting Price's residence, his brother said he had tried to contact the missing man by telephone to no avail, Roan said.

Price is 5'10" tall, weighs 155 lbs, has blue eyes and gray hair. His two vehicles were in his driveway when he was reported as missing.

The sheriff's investigators are urging anyone who may have seen Price since Feb. 4, or knows his whereabouts, to call them at 228-467-5101, or 601-798-8555.

BCE aids St. Jude

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital announced the successful completion of the Math-A-Thon at Bay Catholic Elementary in Bay St. Louis, MS. Math-A-Thon, now in its 24th year, is an educationally based fundraising program in which students obtain sponsors for the number of math problems completed in special workbooks provided for students in grades k-9. The students who participate in the program learn to do more than just math problems; they also learn the importance of helping children who are less fortunate than themselves. St. Jude fully credits its successes in the treatment children to the generous support of people around the world, including the students at Bay Catholic Elementary.

"We are very proud of our students for working so hard on the Math-A-Thon", said Ms. Favre, volunteer coordinator. "With your help we raised $3,213.35 the year for St. Jude, thank you so much."

A Message From Mrs. Mattie Evelyn Richardson

Born on Feb. 21, 1924,
Brookhaven, MS.

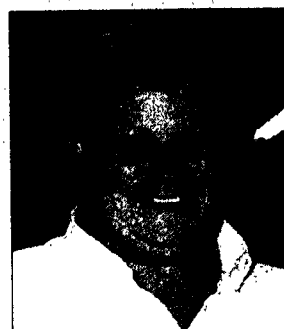

An angel in heaven
tending her rose garden, died April 8, 1997.
Sadly missed by her family and friends and as she would tell it:

Walk slowly as you pass me
by. Nod your head to say hello, lay your flowers at my pillow, send your love out to my soul, see the beauty in my garden, hear the quiet that I am not alone here, see the many friends that I have found, see the tree that stands before me, as it shades my eyes. Know that I'm completely happy, think of this and please don't cry. Think of all the good times, see the bad times as the same, know that my soul is free to fly now, I no longer feel the pain, stay with me a little longer, and then stay outside these walls, take your place among the living, till my peaceful garden calls.

Hope Tree

Students were invited to choose an item from the Hope Tree and return it to school before the Christmas break. The Hope Tree included items from Hope Haven's Christmas Wish List. Hope Haven is a children's shelter operated by Hancock County that serves children that have been placed in the county's supervision. Many times these children come from an environment where Christmas is not celebrated. Bay Catholic families shared their generosity and Christmas spirit this season in a BIG way! Hundreds of items were donated to Hope Haven for Christmas. Students are shown here with Terry Latham, Director of Hope Haven.

The Supper Quit on display at library

BY DONALD LOCKE DDS

The Supper Quilt. This monumental pieced quilt, composed of 51,816 half-inch squares, is modeled on Leonardo deVinci's famous work, "The Last Supper" (Milan, Italy). Dr. Locke worked on it for two and a half years, first creating a computer generated image of the original, enlarged to show pixels. He then selected, cut and sorted by color the 350 different fabrics used, including some of his own hand-dyed fabric. Other hand-dyed fabrics are from Joy Press of Godley, TX. The pieces were arranged on a design wall and then sewed together in strips, using a Singer Featherweight sewing machine. It is 15.3 feet wide and 5.5 feet high.

After about 1200 hours on work, the emerging design became apparent. The top was then machine quilted, by Linda Taylor of Melissa, TX. The machine quilting presented a new set of problems because of the size of the piece, and because the image was not apparent to anyone working close to the fabric. Linda states that it was the most challenging quilting work she had ever done.

The Supper quilt was finished in September 1999.

For more information, please go on to The Supper's web site at: www.thesupper.net

"The Supper" quilt will be displayed at the Hancock County Library, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis, Monday, February 23, 2004, 1 - 5 p.m. (Please use the Ulman Ave. entrance). Dr. Locke will be on hand to answer questions during this time. At 7 p.m. Dr. Locke will give a 30-45 minute talk on the making of his quilt. The public is invited.

Officials seek support for local option sales tax bill

BY EMILY WAGSTER PETTUS
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi Municipal League leaders tried to convince tax-shy lawmakers that a local option tax would not create political problems.

Many lawmakers sought election last year on promises not to increase taxes.

Municipal League president Eddie Favre, mayor of Bay St. Louis, said lawmakers should not worry about being blamed for raising taxes because people would have a right to vote on MOST, the proposed Mississippi Optional Sales Tax.

"I promise you this, we're not asking y'all to take the burden on this," Favre told lawmakers Wednesday. "All we're asking is let our people make the decision, take the vote."

City and county officials from across the state packed a House committee room to seek support for MOST, a proposal that has died the past several years.

MOST would let cities or counties set elections on whether to levy a 3/4 of a cent sales tax for specific capital-improvement projects such as paving streets or improving water lines. The local tax also could be used to pay off existing debt. Sixty percent of voters would have to approve the tax.

Bassfield Mayor Buford Blount says his city has five years of payments left on a 25-year-old water system that springs leaks daily.

"It's gone to pot," Blount said.

He said he's convinced that MOST would give his tiny southwest Mississippi town a way to raise money quickly to pay off the old debt and improve the water system.

Reps. Frances Fredericks, D-Gulfport, and Jim Simpson, R-Pass Christian, said they were concerned about cities using the local option tax to pay off existing debt. Simpson asked if there was any guarantee that local officials would repeal property taxes that are now used to pay the debt.

Favre said there is no such guarantee.

House Ways and Means Chairman Percy Watson, D-Hattiesburg, said a Ways and Means subcommittee would study the MOST bill this session.

Republican Gov. Haley Barbour, elected last year on a pledge not to raise state taxes, has told Municipal League officials that he will not actively support MOST but he will not veto the bill if it passes the full House and Senate.

The bill is House Bill 856.

DuPont DeLisle sets all-time safety record

DuPont employees at the DeLisle titanium dioxide manufacturing plant have established a new all-time worker safety standard for the plant, completing 365 consecutive days, or over 1.2 million work hours, without a workplace injury. "For each one of the DuPont employees at the DeLisle plant, this achievement is monumental. Reaching and surpassing 365 consecutive days without an injury confirms that the DeLisle plant is among the Mississippi Gulf Coast's safest workplaces and also places it as one of the safest in our company and among the safest workplaces in the U.S.," said Pat Nichols, plant manager. "Of course, with each passing day we set another record."

The plant's last injury requiring medical treatment occurred on Feb. 11, 2003. The previous record was broken in October when the plant's employees went beyond 229 days without an injury. The previous record was set more than 10 years ago, in 1991-1992.

A workplace injury is defined as any injury requiring medical treatment or greater, as defined by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).

During the past five years, the plant has achieved an average Total Recordable Rate (TRR) of less than 1.0 and currently has a TRR of 0.171. This compares to TRR measurements in chemical manufacturing plants of 4.02 over the past five years, including a TRR of 3.3 in 2002. TRR is calculated on the number of OSHA recordable injuries divided by 200,000 work hours.

Nichols said that while statistics help to guide continuing improvement in safety, the true significance is the performance itself. "By each employee working a full year without an injury means the absence of pain and suffering that an injury brings not just to the injured person but to that person's family, friends and neighbors," she said.

Hard Rock Casino holds ground breaking

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—Ground was broken Tuesday at the site of the first casino to be built on the Gulf Coast since 1999.

The $235 million Hard Rock Hotel and Casino Biloxi is scheduled to open in summer 2005. The site is just east of Beau Rivage, where the old Gold Shore Casino was located.

Plans call for 48,500 square feet of gaming space and a 306-room hotel. A Hard Rock Live club is planned next to the hotel.

About 1,000 people are expected to work in the casino.

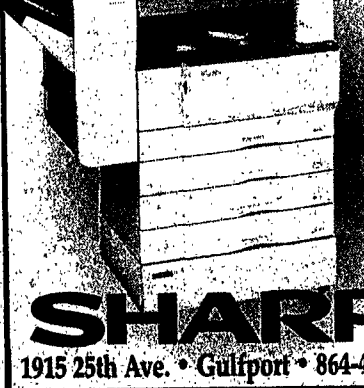

"Let me borrow a line from that classic Rolling Stones song," said Biloxi Mayor A.J. Holloway, who received a leather Hard Rock jacket at the ceremony. "I know it's only rock 'n roll, but I like it."

Krewe of Selene goes on a Space Odyssey

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Krewe of Selene, named for the Goddess of the Moon, celebrated its 7th annual Carnival Ball on Saturday, January 24, 2004 at the Diamondhead Country Club. The theme "A Space Odyssey" offered the krewe a chance to visit many of the planets of the solar system and an opportunity for their guests to meet some unusual visitors from outer space.

The ballroom was decorated with stars and celestial objects suspended in the night sky. A rocket spaceship offered a portal through which the court entered the magical world of outer space, and the royal thrones were surrounded by shooting stars with shimmering tails.

The first traveler was the Captain Terri Downie wearing a black dress highlighted with rhinestones and a collar of black and red feathers. Her headpiece was composed of a tall rhinestone crown filled with black and red plumes.

CAMAN goes wild in the Old West

The Military Officers' Wives' Club (MOWC) held its 31st annual Carnival ball Saturday evening, Feb. 7, at the Marriott Hotel with a Western theme, "Paint Your Wagon." The MOWC's Krewe of CAMAN (Coast Guard, Army, Marine Corps, Air Force, Navy) is the official military Mardi Gras krewe for Greater New Orleans.

More than 500 uniformed and costumed active duty, reserve and retired officers and their spouses and guests gathered for the evening of pageantry, entertainment, dining and dancing.

The festivities began with a welcome extended by the ball chairwoman, Mrs. Norma Bair, wife of retired U.S. Navy Capt. Gary Bair. She then introduced the ball captain, Mrs. Bobbie Whiddon, wife of retired U.S. Navy Capt. David Whiddon.

The Tuba Fats Band provided entertainment during cocktails and hors d'oeuvres.

The U.S. Marine Band provided Mardi Gras music, a military medley and a spirited rendition of the national anthem. A joint services color guard presented and retired the colors, which was followed by the invocation given by retired Navy Rear Adm. Tommie Rinard.

The Running With Scissors production company presented a specially tailored version of its hit show "Andrews Sisters' Hollywood Canteen."

The tableau, a spoof titled "Shoot-out at the O.K. Canal," was presented by Honorary Old Kings Under Medication (HOKUM), past CAMAN kings and queens. The krewe then honored the 2003 queen, Mrs. Martha Whitehead, and king, U.S. Navy Lt. Cmdr. Kevin Boyle.

Next came the presentation of the 2004 royal court of maids, chosen from each branch of the armed forces. The maids wore ornate gold and rhinestone crowns and fur-lined capes.

Each cape was embellished with a satin, rhinestone and sequined monogram of the service represented by that maid.

The maids included Mrs. Stephanie Wyman, escorted by her husband, Coast Guard Lt. Rob Wyman; Mrs. Gayle Strom, escorted by her husband, retired Army Col. Stephen Strom; Mrs. Cori Kinnerup, escorted by her husband, Marine Corps Col. James Kinnerup; Mrs. Karen Chilstrom, escorted by her husband, Air Force Col. John Chilstrom; and Mrs. Janet Nagelin, escorted by her husband, Navy Capt. Tom Nagelin.

The identity of Queen CAMAN XXXI, Mrs. Debbie Donaldson, was revealed as she entered the ballroom.

She was joined later by her husband, retired Navy Rear Adm. Thomas Donaldson.

The queen wore a lavish, scooped-neck gown encrusted with pearls, sequins and crystals. Her flowing cape of white velvet was embellished with rhinestones, gold and silver sequins and crystals over satin inserts and was entirely encircled with ermine trim.

The queen unmasked King CAMAN XXXI, Navy Capt. John McCormack. In keeping with the theme of the ball, the king wore a rhinestone-embellished Western wedding coat with matching rhinestone trimmed trousers, hat and boots.

He also wore the traditional cape of white velvet with rhinestones, gold and silver sequins and crystals that matched that of his queen. His wife, Mrs. Shelly McCormack, joined him later.

Dignitaries who were introduced to the king and queen included U.S. Rep. David Vitter and his wife, Mrs. Wendy Vitter; Navy retired Rear Adm. James Lisanby and Mrs. Gladys Lisanby; retired Rear Adm. George Yount and Mrs. Kathy Yount; and Maj. Gen. David Mize and Mrs. Jane Mize.

During the festivities, special recognition was given to Commodore Thomas J. Lupo, the Greater New Orleans Council of the Navy League of the United States and the New Orleans Commandery of the Naval Order of the United States.

The evening included dancing to music provided by the big band sound of the U.S. Navy Band, New Orleans. A lighted king cake was paraded to signal the midnight hour.

Selene -- Space Odyssey

Torguson, and the smallest moonbeams were Megan Elizabeth Cope and Tristan Hopgood.

Dukes' to his majesty were Don Savage, Tom Begley, Larry Torguson, Sidney Mizell, and Eddie Chevas. The Dukes wore black tails and a sash matching the color of their maids dresses.

Representing the planet Jupiter, Joyce "Pokey" Orr, was the first maid presented. Her royal blue gown was highlighted with rhinestones and sequined appliques. Her headpiece featured a large silver diamond backed by royal blue plumes.

Maid June Curtain represented Mars, the fiery planet. Her fitted red sequined gown was highlighted with a swirling skirt of red and yellow feathers. Her headpiece was a mass of red and yellow plumes.

Maid Gayla Torguson created a beautiful vision for the planet Venus in a glittering gown of purple velvet. The train of the dress was created by yards of purple lace spotted with bangles. Her headpiece was composed of a purple sequined hat adorned with purple and green plumes with rhinestones.

The fourth maid of the evening, representing the planet Saturn, was Mary Mizell. Her stunning gown of dark green velvet was adorned with green and gold sequins, rhinestones and beaded fringe lapels. The elliptical headpiece was created with pheasant and green feathers.

The final maid, Trina Cuccia, who is the daughter of the queen, represented the planet Mercury. Her dress of fuchsia sequins was accented with black silk lace and dotted with rhinestones. Her headpiece of fuchsia plumes was accented with black feathers, rhinestones and a silver orb.

Escorted by the Captain, the King, James Drumright, wore white tails with a white and gold mantle collar. His train was decorated with gold and silver sequins and the emblem of the Krewe of Selene, the Goddess of the Moon.

The Queen, Marilyn Cuccia, was dazzling in a fitted gown of white silk chiffon. The bodice of the dress was highlighted with rhinestones and crystal drops. The royal collar was covered in silk organza and outlined with rhinestones and crystals.

The queen also wore the traditional Krewe of Selene train.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by aliens from the planet Uranus featuring Alice Burkhardt, Alecia Cairns, Marge Edwards, Suzy Fair, Lorna Folsie, Pam Hense, Mary Kipping, Samantha Savage, and Brenda Smith. The creatures from Pluto were Patti Dicke, Kris Hunstad, and Ellen Titus. Choreographers were Marilyn Cuccia and Mary Mizell.

A surprise entertainer was Ryan Chotto, grandson of the queen. Ryan, who is now appearing in New York in the off Broadway musical, "Fame On 42nd Street", sang "Bridge Over Troubled Waters" and danced to the song "Dancin' Man" from the musical "Fosse". Ryan, who flew in just for the night's festivities, has been an entertainer for Selene for many years, and the Krewe and guests thoroughly enjoyed his performance.

The chairman for the set decorations committee was Alecia Cairns. Other members of the committee were Brenda Smith, Ellen Titus, Patti Dicke, Alice Burkhardt, Mary Kipping, Henry Burkhardt, Russ Syverson, and Craig Cairns. Music and lighting were under the direction of Joe Cuccia.

The Master of Ceremonies for the evening was Don Smith. Floor Lieutenants were Charles Haskins and Warren Chellino.

The Krewe of Selene will hold their annual parade on Sunday, February 15 starting at 6:30 P.M. The parade route starts at the front of the community near the shopping center and travels to the Diamondhead Country Club.

Bay High Stepper Dance Team wins big at state high school competition

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Bay High Stepper Dance Team traveled to Jackson on Saturday February 7, 2004 to compete in the MS. State High School Dance Team Competition, hosted by American All-Stars.

They competed in five categories of competition: High Kick, Pom, Ensemble, Officer's, and Prop/Novelty. The Bay High Stepper Dance Team placed 1st in all five entries.

The 20 member team is under the direction of Mrs. Natalie Skinner. Mrs. Skinner choreographs all dance team numbers that the Stepper's perform throughout each year. Each competition category contains different requirements for competition. High kick must include a minimum of 50 kicks, including levels, corner kicks and fan kicks.

It must also include 2 different leaps with arms hooked together, and kicks moving in formation. The Steppers are known for their high kicks, with the toe pointed and kicking straight up by the dancer's ear.

Pom routines must include a use of poms for 95% of the dance, and must feature 3 formation changes, a turn, a leap and a contagion. The highlight of the Stepper's Pom routine was a toe-touch by a group of dancers while the remainder of the girls somersaulted underneath them. Prop/Novelty must portray a particular theme or use of props throughout the dance routine.

This year's entry for the Stepper's was a Cartoon theme, with Sponge Bob square pants, Scooby-doo, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Anamaniacs and the Smurfs. The props included a 20' TV. The Officer dance must consist of the team officers and was a jazz routine to "Fever". The 6 members were beautiful in their hot pink and black tuxedo like costume, complete with rhinestone beaded top hats and gloves. The Ensemble entry must consist of no more than 8 dance team members and the highly unusual dance and costumes were fabulous.

The girls wore a hooded gold and black costume and performed a very technical dance number, highlighted by a body pyramid lift. The Bay High Stepper Dance Team also won the Over-all Trophy and are now the 2003-2004 State Champions. They travel to Orlando on Thursday, 2/12/04 for several days of National Competition.

The Stepper's and Mrs. Skinner, as well as the dance team parents and Booster Club want to thank our community for all of your continued support, encouragement and generous contributions throughout the year. Their success is due in part, to so much support from others. They are striving to "Go All The Way" at National's.

Way to go, Albert!

"We were all there together in the hospital when daddy was dying," Michael pointed out with great satisfaction. "It was unbelievable just how loose he had us, and how we were engaged in prayer and light conversation the whole time right up to and after he had gone on to God."

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

At five feet, two and a half inches, Albert Esnault figured to be mainly overlooked, unnoticed by most people in most situations. One could hardly imagine that he would ever be the center of attraction in social circles.

Yet, no matter what was going on, he invariably made his presence felt through his upbeat personality, his keen interest in what people were saying and doing, and his nonstop banter and sense of humor.

Surprisingly, he never struck me as being a mere five feet, two and a half inches tall. Somehow, he fit the national survey made some 12 years ago which found that people who impress us seem taller than they actually are.

Up until the outbreak of hostilities in Iraq in March, 2003, I had only heard his daughter Denise talk about Albert several times. In their home in early April, at a prayer celebration dedicated to our armed forces at war, I had the pleasure of making his acquaintance at the reception afterwards.

At first, you do not know how to take it when someone unknown to you comes forward with wry remarks and observations. However, you relaxed immediately in Albert's case, for it soon became very clear that he loved to smile, converse, joke around and be happy about life.

Never was that clearer than on the day the family called me to the V.A. hospital to give him the anointing of the sick and Communion. The shock of meeting him in March was redoubled with getting used to him sick in bed.

This time I was completely and very pleasantly dumbfounded to discover that Albert's joviality was not a superficial thing, a mere social ploy to be used in social settings and celebrations. No, it was far deeper than that.

Truth to tell, I have never experienced anything like it in my life, that a man pretty much in a dying way was so full of positive thoughts and words, and, more, of humorous anecdotes, remarks and jokes.

Together with his impish smile, everything he was saying seemed amazingly out of context, because dying people do not busy themselves with cracking up the people around them. Yet, that is exactly what Albert was doing. His family members were alternately crying and laughing.

Something mighty special is going on when folks around a person almost in the throes of death do not know whether to cry or laugh aloud with him. I have never seen anything so remarkable, curious or uplifting under the stark conditions of fast approaching death.

On a lower level of intensity, the whole scene was reminiscent of the Deacon Lawrence's martyrdom in 258 A.D. Condemned by Emperor Valerian to be broiled slowly on the gridiron, Lawrence quipped to his executioner:

"Let my body be turned. One side is broiled enough."

Just as cynicism and despair are the eventual and inevitable fruit of a faithless life, so are hope, humor and outright joy the fruit of a life filled with faith. Frankly, there is no contest when it comes down to a choice between dying bitterly and dying with faith, hope and joy.

When an in-law called to inform me that Albert had gone on to God, I was disappointed that I was not able to visit him one more time, converse with him and be thoroughly inspired by the humorous bent of his spirituality.

It is a universal aphorism that our lives will never be the same again once a human being has crossed our path. That, of course, means for better or for worse, since not all people impact us with the positive force of faith.

In Albert's case, however, the truism was never truer that our lives will never be the same again in a very positive, humorous, joyful way since Albert Esnault crossed our path. We just thank God for Albert.

That same atmosphere of humor and joy pervaded the mood of the family when they came to the rectory to plan Albert's Mass of the Resurrection.

This was the closest it gets to experiencing a joyful planning session.

Albert was a man who oozed joy, having served his country with honor, and having found 53 years of marital bliss with Hazel Aguilard, with whom he had fathered Michael, Albert Jr., Annette, Denise and Darrell.

While old age is an affliction for the average person, Albert found it to be an adventure as he eased beyond the proverbial mark of Psalm 90, achieving with panache and in joyful fashion the landmark of four score and three.

We should all be so faithful, so joyful and so blessed as Albert to be able to squeeze life to the full out of this Valley of Tears, and to top it all off with a faithful, laughing, joyous transition into the eternal kingdom of our Father.

The "Word" for the Week
Working faith

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

After my father died, a pall bearer at the funeral offered me this assurance, "Your dad believed; he talked to me about it more than once."

I've thought about that statement quite often. But the nagging question always comes back, "What did my dad believe?" You see, there are different kinds of faith. There is a faith that simply acknowledges the facts. You might say, "Oh yes, I believe what the Bible says about Jesus."

Then there is a faith that goes a little further. You might not only believe what the Bible says about Jesus but those truths stir your conscience. But when someone offers a challenge, you turn away from your faith. Then there is a spectacular faith; faith for miracles.

The trouble is, these kinds of faith do not lead you to heaven. You must not only know the truth, you must be convicted by it and act upon it. You must not only believe what the Bible says about Jesus. You must also understand who Jesus is and what He came to do. You must trust in this Jesus. You must be convinced before God of your need for the forgiveness offered through Jesus.

When your conscience is stirred by the teachings of the Bible, you must confess your sin before God and ask His forgiveness.

You must trust in the sacrifice of Christ as the only adequate payment for your sins. You must believe God will perform the ultimate miracle on you.

You must believe God will cleanse you on the inside and give you a new heart that yearns to follow Him. This is the kind of faith the Bible speaks of when it says,

"Without faith it is impossible to please [God]" (Hebrews 11:6)

Guide to Birding Coastal Mississippi and Adjacent Counties at Beach House

BY JUDY TOUPS,
JERRY BIRD, STACY
JON PETERSON

Join the crowd at Da Beach House for the Thursday Night Talkabout at 7 p.m., February 19 featuring Judy Touns and Jerry Bird, co-authors.

Books will be on sale and there will also be a book signing.

Profits from purchase of books at the signing will go to the Mississippi Coast Audubon Society.

A few words, by one of the authors, Judy Touns

When many of us were testing the waters of this wonderful preoccupation called "birding," there were no such books as bird-finding (or birding) guides. Wherever we birded, we carried one or more books that are called standard field guides - those that illustrate birds for identification purposes. Such guides also provide general information on the geographical areas in which a species might be seen in any given season. In that regard, they are necessarily imprecise.

By the mid 1970s, the broad appeal of birding-while-traveling (forerunner of today's ecotourism) had grown exponentially, and it generated a need for what is known as "bird finding, or birding, guides." Such guides provide more precise information on the birds that one might expect within limited geographical areas. Both are necessary tools of a birder's trade. One helps a birder to identify birds; the other helps a birder to find them.

The opportunity to write a bird-finder's guide for southern Mississippi came back in 2002, through Mark Allison, nature editor at Stackpole Books, Inc. We completed the manuscript in May 2003, and made the final edits in November 2003. And now we have a book that we hope will be of great use to the visiting birder from Omaha who is looking for a Red-cockaded Woodpecker and has only one day to explore his options, and of equal use to the backyard birder who wonders if she could possibly have seen a Dickcissel in the middle of January.

Guide to Birding Coastal Mississippi and Adjacent Counties is a guide to birding in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, George, Pearl River, and Stone Counties. It is a distillation of all that is known about the nearly 400 species that have been recorded in southern Mississippi, from common permanent residents such as the Carolina Chickadee to casual winter visitors such as the Red-throated Loon.

The gorgeous watercolor cover art was done by Alison Henry; habitat photos were provided by Colinda Green, and virtually all the birders of southern Mississippi provided special help.

Michael Welch

Michael Welch is content with life. He stars as Luke, the youngest member of the Girardi family of Arcadia, Calif. His only sister, Joan (Amber Tamblyn), secretly has been carrying on two-way conversations with God.

After some initial skepticism from the press, critics and viewers have caught on to CBS' "Joan of Arcadia," which has become a Friday-night hit.

Welch says, "My number-one concern is that people weren't going to give it a chance because they thought it would be another 'Touched by an Angel' clone. But people did give it a chance. Once they did that, sat down and watched the show, that's when they realized it's not.

"You can read about it all you like. You can hear what you want to hear about it, but you've actually got to sit down and watch the show to see what it's like.

"The idea itself sounds weird on paper. It seemed weird to me at first. But it works really well."

On the show, Luke shares an advanced-placement chemistry class with Joan. In real life, although he's a teenager, Welch doesn't attend high school. Instead, he has a tutor on the set.

"I went to regular school for the first 10 years of my life," he says, "up to fifth grade. I never went to a real junior high or high school. But I've seen what it's like. I have friends who go to regular high schools. I don't miss anything.

"People have told me, 'Oh, man, you're missing out on the experience of high school,' but I'm getting a whole different experience, and I'm doing what I love to do. This is what I love to do, and what I'm going to do. I don't feel I should have to wait just to get the experience of high school.

"I'm probably getting a better education."

Revisiting Brooklyn's war and peace

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

If only some directors could learn to leave well enough alone.

Showtime's "Crown Heights" Monday, Feb. 16, has all the elements for a great movie, but trips itself up with fancy devices.

The riots that rocked Crown Heights, a Brooklyn neighborhood shared by 20,000 Chasidic Jews and 180,000 blacks, remains a fascinating story of how two diverse groups live together and what happens when they can't.

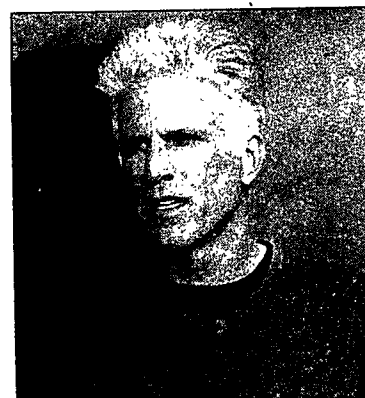

In August 1991, a car driven by a Chasidic man fatally struck a black boy. Soon, fights in the streets led to blacks killing a rabbinical student. Realizing that if unchecked the violence would only escalate, a black leader and a Jewish leader band together to try to make a difference.

Paul Richards (Mario Van Peebles, "Ali") and Rabbi David Lazarson (Howie Mandel, "St. Elsewhere") form Project Cure to make peace. The guys talk, paint a mural and form a hip-hop group.

All it took was letting two teenagers, Yudi and T.J. (Jeremy Blackman, Dequan Henderson), mingle and within minutes, they discover they like the same rap artists and hip-hop moves. They learn about each other's cultures while rehearsing dance steps and shooting hoops.

All of the actors turn in fine performances, with Van Peebles giving off a confident air of no-nonsense leadership as the youth center director and Mandel moving well between the more cloistered life of the Chasidim and the secular streets of Brooklyn, and using his Hebrew skills to lead prayers.

Some news footage is used, but it neither sufficiently shows how the riots rent the community, nor how many feel it cost them Mayor David Dinkins a second term.

46th Daytona 500 marks new era for NASCAR

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

For a NASCAR fan, describing the Daytona International Speedway is like trying to explain the Grand Canyon or Niagara Falls. Words and pictures just don't suffice.

It must be seen with one's own eyes. "The banking is unbelievable, and television does not do it justice," says NBC's Bill Weber, who will report from the pits at the venerable Florida track when the peacock network airs the 46th running of the Daytona 500 on Sunday, Feb. 15. "When you go into Daytona and you stand on the ground and look up at the turns, you would think the cars, if they stopped, would just slide off. And that's the challenge to the driver, to be able, at over 190 mph, to hold that car in that line in traffic for 2 1/2 miles each lap for 500 miles all day."

"People ask, 'How do new fans get hooked on NASCAR?' " Weber says. "Hopefully, we can get them hooked by entertaining them on television. But if you take these fans to these race tracks - not just Daytona, but almost everyone has some unique characteristic - and close their eyes or blindfold them as you take them inside, and then put them at the bottom of those bankings and have them look up, every time you do it, it's like, 'Wow!' Because as hard as we try to describe it, until you see it and feel it, you can't appreciate it."

With this year's season-opening Daytona 500, two important changes take effect in NASCAR. The first and most visible is the name of the circuit. After a 32-year association with R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, during which time the series formerly known as Winston Cup grew from a bunch of races in the Southeast to a powerful mainstream sport, NASCAR decided to join forces with a more socially acceptable sponsor, communications giant Nextel, thus making the circuit the Nextel Cup.

The second and more controversial change is how the final standings will be determined. Previously, points drivers accumulated in each race were totaled at the end of the season to determine a champion. Now, the season is essentially split in two. The top 10 drivers and any others within 400 points of first place after the first 26 races will be included in a 10-race "Chase for the Championship." The first-place driver will begin with 5,050 points, the second driver 5,045 and so on, with incremental drops of five points for all those involved in the championship showdown.

Under the new system, 2003 series champ Matt Kenseth would have finished sixth, while second-place finisher Jimmie Johnson would have won the title by 55 points over Jeff Gordon, who under the old system took fourth.

While NASCAR officials are promoting the new system as a way of rewarding winning (Kenseth won only once in 2003, while finishing in the top 10 25 times) and adding excitement to the season-ending races (and thus increasing TV ratings at a time when fans invariably turn their attentions to the NFL, college football and the World Series), drivers and fans have been less than enthusiastic.

One is Bobby Labonte, a Nextel Cup driver who finished eighth last year. "I don't like it," he says. "I mean, I say I don't like it, but you know what? It really doesn't matter. I mean, we're going to go out there and race. ... I just hope that it's good for the sport as a whole. That's the main thing. And to be honest with you, if you call me back next year at this time and if it was a success, then I'd have to say, 'Hey, it might be one of the greatest things out there. I don't know.' Because right now, we don't know."

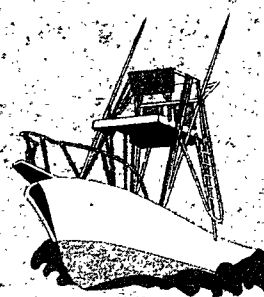

Weber takes a more positive view. "As a fan, I'm looking forward to it," he says,

"and I know that probably puts me in the minority, just judging by what you read and what you hear. Although, I was at Daytona for both test sessions (in January), and I think more drivers are for it than are letting on. To attract new fans, I think you have to reward winning. When baseball went to the designated hitter or the wild card or realigned the divisions or things along those lines, naturally (people were) against it, because as a fan, you don't want to see change, and I think that's what a lot of fans are going through right now. They don't want to see any changes. I think this is going to generate some excitement, and if it doesn't work, you can always go back. But I think it's worth a try."

As far as drivers to watch at Daytona this year, Weber names defending champion Michael Waltrip, as well as Dale Earnhardt Jr., Gordon, Tony Stewart and Labonte. Of the last two, he says, "It wouldn't surprise me to see the two (Joe Gibbs Racing) cars run very well down there. Tony Stewart does not have the best of luck at Daytona, especially in the 500. Bobby Labonte's best finish there is second. But they usually come out of the gate strong down there. I think they'll have a good shot."

Labonte, the 2000 Cup champion, tries to approach the Daytona 500 as just one of 36 races he'll be running this year. "In the scheme of things as far as the year goes, it still pays the same points as the next race and the next race and the next race," he says. "But Daytona is obviously special because of the fact that it was one of the first tracks that was built for the Grand National series years ago, and obviously it gets a lot more media attention than, say, the second race of the year is going to have. You can say that if you win Daytona, it's going to make your year, but that's not really the case. It hasn't been."

A&E orders another season of 'MI-5'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q ■ What happened to A&E's "MI-5"? I saw what looked like a cliffhanger season finale, then nothing more. Is it coming back? -Ann Crewe via e-mail.

A ■ Don't worry, Ann, principal photography on season three of "MI-5" began last month in England. (For the record, what you saw on A&E in 2003 was both the first and second UK seasons run without a break.)

New regular cast member Rupert Penry-Jones ("Cambridge Spies") joins returning regulars Matthew Macfadyen, Keeley Hawes, David Oyelowo and Peter Firth in the 10 new episodes, which will begin airing on A&E late this year.

Q ■ What was that hauntingly beautiful song at the end of the Jan. 18 episode of "Alias"? It affected me the same way Jeff Buckley's "Hallelujah" did on "The West Wing" last season. -Jay Nixon, Millville, Pa.

A ■ I'm always delighted to introduce new listeners to one of my favorite singers, Irish troubadour Damien Rice. The haunting song that knocked your socks off is called "Delicate," and you'll find it on Rice's compact disc "O."

Matthew Macfadyen

Q ■ I was excited about TV Land's revival of "The Carol Burnett Show," but was disappointed to see that each episode contained only a couple of sketches. Wasn't the show originally an hour long? What happened to all the singing and dancing segments? -Rob in San Francisco.

A ■ The complete, hour-long episodes of "The Carol Burnett Show" are available on DVD from Columbia House, but as Burnett explained recently in a press conference with the Television Critics Association, the musical numbers were cut from syndicated TV repeats of the show simply because music royalties would have been prohibitively expensive.

Q ■ I am a fan of "Joan of Arcadia" and "Ed," both of which feature characters in wheelchairs. Are the actors themselves actually wheelchair-bound in real life? -Paul in New York.

A ■ Jason Ritter, who turns 24 this week, plays injured teen Kevin Girardi on "Joan," but the actor has not suffered such injuries in real life.

However, Daryl "Chill" Mitchell, who plays Eli Cartwright on "Ed" and previously was a regular on "The John Larroquette Show," was paralyzed from the mid-chest down in a November 2001 motorcycle accident.

'Until the Violence Stops' shows warriors in a good fight

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

In some cases, silence is easier. It may not be better, but it is far easier to stay quiet about pain than it is to talk about it. Perhaps the most personal pain, that of rape, is the most difficult to discuss. Why talk about losing control of your body and dignity?

Eve Ensler, playwright and activist, knows why. She knows that when women stand up and cite wrongs committed against them, healing begins. Ensler has devoted herself to stemming violence against women.

To that end, she started V-Day, the global movement that grew out of her award-winning play "The Vagina Monologues." "V" stands for Valentine, victory and vagina.

Over six years, the play has raised $20 million. Various productions of it raise money for programs designed to stop the violence. This year 2,000 productions are planned worldwide.

On Tuesday, Feb. 17, Lifetime airs the first documentary about V-Day, "Until the Violence Stops."

The powerful film celebrates people trying to stop violence against women in five diverse communities: Harlem, N.Y.; Ukiah, Calif.; Manila, Philippines; Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota; and Narok, Kenya. The camera shines on international movie stars and poor rural girls in Kenya, all talking about women enduring beatings, rape and, in Africa, mutilation of the genitalia.

Though the entire documentary is arresting and dramatic, the most gut-wrenching scenes are in Africa, where some women are forced to undergo female circumcision. When a young woman refuses, she is often banished from her community. One woman, Agnes, made it her mission to help these girls, and she walked the countryside, looking for ostracized girls to help.

Agnes now has a jeep and a safe home to shelter the young women, courtesy of V-Day fund-raising.

Ensler's play and movement resounds so powerfully with her audience that many actresses who see the show immediately want to become involved. Such was the case with Jane Fonda and LisaGay Hamilton ("The Practice").

When Fonda was asked to perform it in Atlanta about three years ago, she recalls, "I said, 'Send me the play.' And I started reading it, and I thought there is just no way. This is the South and I am just being accepted here. I have enough problems ... It doesn't read as well as it views. It is not porn. It is so not dirty. I don't think I have ever laughed so hard or cried so hard in a play. I came of age in the '50s, and it allowed me to begin to get over the shame of my body."

"If you stripped everything else away," Fonda says, "class issues, race issues, everything else, what you would be left with at the very center of the cancer is patriarchy and how it has impacted the lives of girls and women since the beginning of agriculture. And it is going to be the last to go. It doesn't surprise me that we are still fighting it."

Hamilton saw "The Vagina Monologues" in Manhattan with her family. "I watched my mother and sister cry and laugh for 90 minutes," she says. "And I just remember going, 'I love the premise.' From the beginning, it spoke to women of all races and ethnicities, gender preferences. And this Euro-American woman starts to tell these stories and I was included, not excluded."

Every shade and age of woman is included in the film. The Native Americans of the Pine Ridge Reservation talk about how beating women was an accepted part of their culture. "I think we are forgotten as Lakota women," one woman says. "My mother died when a man punched her in the heart. It's like a metaphor for Indian women."

"I hope this conveys the seriousness and centrality of this issue," Ensler says of the documentary. "It is at the heart and center of everything going on in this world. If we are to end violence against women and girls in this world, which I believe we will, we will then have to address all of the other issues that surround it, like poverty, racism and lack of education."

The documentary shows prior V-Day celebrations, including one in Harlem that Hamilton organized. Rosie Perez and Salma Hayek are among the performers.

Throughout the documentary, shocking statistics are mentioned: One in three women worldwide has been beaten or sexually abused,

Jane Fonda (left) and Eve Ensler appear in Lifetime's "Until the Violence Stops" Tuesday. Fonda says she hopes viewers "will feel they are not alone, and will ... want to join with other women to end it."

according to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women; Every two minutes, someone in America is sexually assaulted, according to the U.S. Department of Justice.

These numbers can be reduced, Ensler maintains, as women speak up about topics that have long been hidden, and men become educated.

"When we tell other people, we realize that we have legitimate rights to put that story into the open, which means that it really happened," Ensler says of rape. "And we are not to blame. We can let go of it."

For married stars of CBS movie, 'It Must Be Love'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

If you think Ted Danson and Mary Steenburgen get enough of married life at home, think again.

The award-winning actors play spouses stranded by a snowstorm in "It Must Be Love," a new CBS movie airing Sunday, Feb. 15. Written by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Beth Henley ("Crimes of the Heart"), the comedy-drama finds the fictional couple about to split. During a road trip to hammer out the terms of their impending divorce, they veer so far off their planned route, they fear they won't be found. The circumstances make them honest with each other in a way they thought was lost forever to them.

Directed by Emmy winner Steven Schachter ("Door to Door"), the film also features Polly Holliday ("Alice") as Steenburgen's flashy mother and Bonnie Bartlett ("Once and Again") as Danson's relatively reserved mom.

Danson says he and Steenburgen enjoyed playing parts he describes as "kind of a funny George and Martha of 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?'" This couple's relationship disintegrates, and they decide to be amicably divorced. The neat thing about working on this with Mary is that we could allow ourselves, without any apologies, to show a little bit of our hideous side to the world. After eight years of being together, as Mary and I have been, you've pretty much shown that side to each other.

"It's hard to do a love story these days," Danson notes, "and it's even harder to do one with actors who are married. On top of that, it's harder still to do one if you're in your 50s, but Beth Henley really pulled it off. She called us right after she wrote it and said she felt like she'd written us a valentine."

An Oscar winner for "Melvin and Howard," current "Joan of Arcadia" co-star Steenburgen previously worked with Henley on the 1989 movie "Miss Firecracker." The actress maintains she is "pretty obsessive about saying the words exactly as the writer wrote them. I don't ever assume that I can come up with something better, particularly in the case of Beth. Her language is very simple, but the complexity of the different levels she works on is just enormous. You can't describe this movie as being just a comedy or just a drama, because every sentence is both tragic and comic."

Having also acted together in the CBS series "Ink," the feature film "Pontiac Moon," and the miniseries "Gulliver's Travels" and "Living With the Dead," Steenburgen and Danson always welcome the opportunity. She says, "Putting aside that I'm madly in love with him, he's just an amazing actor and a consummate professional. Having said that, we're also very badly behaved when we work with each other. I basically got a dressing-down on the second day of shooting. Ted did a take and I said, 'You can do it better than that.' The director said, 'No. No. You're not going to talk to him like that.' I pretty much behaved after that."

"Cheers" Emmy winner Danson, whose CBS series "Becker" recently ended, is grateful the network let "It Must Be Love" be made without significant changes to the original concept. "(CBS programming chief) Les Moonves was trained as an actor, and I think he has a real appreciation for good writing. He almost green-lit this just off Beth Henley's name ... and if you hire Beth Henley, it would be very silly to water her down in any way."

Spouses Ted Danson and Mary Steenburgen ("Joan of Arcadia") play a longtime married couple on the verge of an amicable divorce in "It Must Be Love," a new comedy-drama movie airing Sunday on CBS. The film was written by Pulitzer Prize-winning

History Channel examines auto-racing safety

By Dan Ladd
© Zap2it

When Dale Earnhardt crashed into the wall at the 2001 Daytona 500, nearly everyone expected him to walk away from the wreck. After all, moments earlier driver Tony Stewart had been involved in an accident in which his car became airborne and appeared to shatter into pieces, and Stewart suffered only a mere concussion.

But Earnhardt's car met the track's concrete barrier at 180 mph, instantly killing stock-car racing's most beloved icon. In the aftermath, the issue of safety for race-car drivers was brought to the forefront as fans and racing officials alike sought answers as to why this tragedy occurred and how future deaths could be prevented.

What few racing fans know is that something was already being done. For years, race teams and scientists at universities and biomechanical laboratories within the auto industry had been working to develop technology to better protect drivers. This technology is profiled in "Racetrack Tech," an episode of The History Channel series "Modern Marvels," premiering Wednesday Feb. 18, three years to the date of Earnhardt's death.

"Racetrack Tech" takes viewers into the world of crash-test labs, dummies and high-speed cameras. It details how these and other safety tools have been developed and used throughout racing history.

In the early days of racing it was improvements in tires, safety harnesses and fireproof driving suits. Today its energy absorbing racetrack walls, roof flaps on race cars, and head and neck restraining systems such as the HANS (head and neck support) device, which is now mandatory for NASCAR drivers. "Racetrack Tech" shows how the system was developed, tested and improved by Dr. Bob Hubbard.

Dr. Hubbard also helped pioneer the invention of crash-test dummies, a more familiar car-safety tool. But "Modern Marvels" producer Beth Dietrich Segarra believes the main thrust behind "Racetrack Tech" is to enlighten viewers to auto racing's lesser-known, behind-the-scenes technology. "I think if you're a race fan, you might not know a lot of this stuff and if you're not a race fan it totally can open you up to a sport that you know nothing about," she says.

Both Segarra and "Racetrack Tech" supervising producer Patrick Leigh-Bell stressed that there has always been an emphasis on improving safety in stock-car racing and other auto-racing divisions.

"It was an evolution to begin with and it's going to continue to be an evolution," Leigh-Bell says. "I feel like part of our story defines how there were a number of milestones, not just Dale Earnhardt. This parallels back to Fireball Roberts, a stock-car racer who died in a terribly bad fiery crash. He had an episode similar to Earnhardt back then. He (Roberts) had a tremendous following, people loved him and from that there was an immediate sense of needing to do more for fire protection."

Like Earnhardt, who shunned some of NASCAR's basic safety innovations, Roberts was particular about his choice of equipment. He refused, for example, to wear the then standard borax-treated racing suit. In the years following his 1964 death, companies began developing safer suits for drivers in all racing formats to wear.

Today it appears that safety technology on the track is keeping up with that of the race cars. One such development is the SAFER (steel and foam energy reduction) barrier, a combination of foam and steel tubing installed along the concrete walls that is much more forgiving than concrete alone.

This new wall and the HANS device are considered excellent safety innovations, but there will always be room for improvement. Still, Leigh-Bell is fascinated by the accomplishments detailed in "Racetrack Tech" and what lies ahead.

"The most impressive to me is that people like Dr. Hubbard are really dedicated to the safety of the drivers," he says. "They're not making a product to make money. These people in some cases come out of the automobile companies that are doing just that sort of work for consumer cars. They're focused and they care about the people driving both race cars and regular automobiles."

"NASCAR Racing" Sunday, Feb. 15 (NBC, 1:30 p.m. ET): Out with the old and in with the new is the theme for NASCAR's top racing circuit as its season officially begins with the 46th Daytona 500. Nextel replaces Winston as the series chief sponsor, but what fans are more interested in is the "Chase for the Championship," the 10 season-ending races (following the first 26) that will determine the Nextel Cup winner. It's the first significant change to NASCAR's race structure since 1975.

"NBA Basketball" Sunday, Feb. 15 (TNT, 8:30 p.m. ET): The Toronto Raptors' Vince Carter and Kobe Bryant of the Los Angeles Lakers lead the Eastern and Western Conferences, respectively, in the 53rd NBA All-Star Game. Carter led all players in votes as the balloting wound down, and he should be joined on the East squad by, among others, Detroit's Ben Wallace and Indiana's Jermaine O'Neal. Another O'Neal, Shaquille, teams with usual running mate Bryant on the West, to the delight of L.A.'s Staples Center crowd.

"PGA Golf" Thursday, Feb. 19 (USA Network, 3 p.m. ET): Mike Weir won his second PGA Tour event of 2003 in dramatic fashion at last year's Nissan Open, coming from seven strokes behind on Sunday to defeat Charles Howell III with a birdie on the second playoff hole. This year's event again takes place at the Riviera Country Club in Pacific Palisades, Calif., where Weir will be challenged by Howell, as well as Darren Clarke, Sergio Garcia, Nick Price, Fred Funk and Davis Love III, among others.

Michael Waltrip defends his title in the 46th running of the Daytona 500 Sunday on NBC.

All My Children

Fearing she might have killed Michael in an amnesiac state, Erica hired Tad to investigate her actions. Erica then begged Kendall not to plead guilty, because she has something planned. Greenlee apologized to Kendall for exposing her phony pregnancy in court, and tried to convince Kendall that she and Ryan weren't plotting against her. A disbelieving Kendall returned Ryan's engagement ring. Greenlee went to the rocks where Leo died and fell into a mineshaft. Bianca didn't tell Lena about Maggie's kiss, and sensed a disturbing link between Lena's coat and a memory of the murder. After Mary saw Babe stealing from the Chandler safe, Jamie created a story as to why she might have taken the cash. Coming: Maria makes a painful admission to Edmund.

As the World Turns

Unable to flee the country with the baby and devastate Cabot's birth mother, Rosanna returned with the child and told Craig he's dead to her. Alison told the police that Chris never pushed her, and the charges against him were dropped. Alison and Chris made living arrangements that shocked both their families. Lily appeared to be moving on with her life, but still was haunted by Rose's death. Katie and Mike said a reluctant goodbye, unable to cope with the upheavals in their relationship. Coming: Sarah gets suspicious of Jessica.

Bold and Beautiful

Ridge told Brooke that in order to move on with their lives, they need to sign the annulment papers. Meanwhile, Dr. Paxson learned that several test results, including Brooke's paternity test may have been erroneous, and the tests need to be performed again. Unaware of this, as Brooke waited to speak with the doctor, she signed the papers. Thorne convinced Eric to focus on the good times he had with Stephanie and let go of his anger. Eric was taken aback when the woman in his new drawing turned out to have Stephanie's face, and he shocked her with his wishes to rebuild the company and reunite the family. Eric forgave Stephanie her past sins and decided to move back in with her. Coming: Emotional reactions greet the doctor's news.

Days of Our Lives

John found Marlena holding a knife on Celeste, but thought it was due to her fear of the killer being nearby. When a new clue was revealed - a piece of torn cloth that matched Marlena's blue suit - Belle caught her mother cutting up the suit, and Marlena prepared to kill her own daughter. Jan was ready to carry out Nicole's orders and kill Victor, but Nicole suddenly and correctly realized that Victor may have drafted a new will - cutting her out completely - and tried to send Jan a text message. However, Brady, still handcuffed to Nicole, grabbed the PDA from her. As Will looked on, pleased that his ploy with his pet had worked, Lucas rescued Sami from a snake. Coming: Bonnie and Julie face off as enemies.

General Hospital

As the hotel fire raged, Skye and Faith dragged Luke to safety. A hooded man shot Brian and hid the treasure in a Dumpster. Alcazar found Sonny and Carly. Capelli handcuffed Jason to a railing in the stairwell and left him to die. Fearing the end was near, Jax and Sam made love. Rescue helicopters saved almost everyone, but Nicolas was left behind as the roof began to collapse. After Dillon told Tom about his feelings for Georgie, Tom used Dillon's words to impress her. Coming: Sonny and Carly's custody battle gets nasty.

Guiding Light

Michelle and Marah saved Marina from the tunnel cave-in, and suspicions against Carrie remained high. Cassie spoke to Jeffrey about the Delirium problem, and was surprised when he took her concerns seriously. Meanwhile, Lizzie faced danger when, at a rave, Blade dropped a 'D' into her drink. Tony believed that Bruzi was behind the gas leak at his house and warned Bruzi to stay away from his family. Gus told Jeffrey how Alan protected Brad on the subject of Antimony: Harley had to fast-talk her way out of a run-in with Brad's wife. Coming: More concerns about Carrie.

One Life to Live

Todd changed his mind and refused to accept the plea bargain. When Kevin testified about making love with Blair, Todd attacked him and his bail was revoked. Stephen caught Rae snooping in his office, where she found a diploma with the name of a murdered doctor. Rae disappeared, and when she woke up, realized she was being held prisoner. After viewing a video the killer sent him of John's late girlfriend, Caitlin, John realized the killer has a personal vendetta against him. Ben woke up from his coma. Coming: Marty returns to Llanview.

Passions

Beth made another attempt on Gwen's life that sent Gwen to the hospital. Gwen confided to Ethan her suspicion that Beth is behind her and Sheridan's traumas, then Dr. Culver confronted Beth about her false pregnancy. Luis resorted to violence to reach Sheridan, Later, Luis, Eve and Pilar finally convinced Antonio to remove Sheridan from the psych ward, while Alistair threatened Eve and Julian to keep them from saving Sheridan. tered her on the outskirts of town. Chris forgave Danny for not telling her that his career overseas isn't really that successful. Brittany had to be sedated after she insisted on seeing her facial scar. Hoping to get Kevin to open up to her, Lauren agreed to attend the Valentine's Day dance with him. Pressed by Paul, Michael finally admitted that Kevin is his brother. Determined to help bring down Kevin, Lily snooped in his apartment and found what could be new evidence against him. Clarke calls it quits on 'Days'

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

"Days of Our Lives" is suffering yet another loss. Original cast member John Clarke (Mickey Horton) has announced he's leaving the show.

The official statement from "Days" says, "John, with his physician's urging, wants to have time to walk his dogs, travel with his wife, sing in his choir, watch his daughter on a hit TV show (actress Melinda Clarke, 'The O.C.') and take care of his grandbaby."

The actor joined the cast in 1965, and he believes it's time to finish his reign.

"Thirty-eight years in the same job is great for the ego, but the health needs nourishment, too," Clarke says. "I'm going to miss everybody, but I'll be back to have lunch now and then."

Richard Voigts took over the role on Feb. 3, but no news as to whether the position is permanent.

Clarke's departure leaves Frances Reid (Alice Horton) as the remaining original cast member.

In other news: Robin Christopher (Skye Quartermaine, "General Hospital") and her husband, Matt Crane

(ex-Matt Cory, "Another World"), are expecting their first child in January.

The couple met when they both worked on "AW," and married in Nova Scotia, in April 2000.

The cast of "Passions" is breathing a collective sigh of relief. The show was picked up for another year by NBC.

Dear Candace: The actor who played Simon Frasier on "As the World Turns" recently came back to the show. I saw him a few months ago on "L.A. Dragnet." Can you tell me what else he was doing while he was away? Did he always plan to come back to daytime? -Daisy via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Paul Leyden also guest starred in "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit." When he left "ATWT," he stated he would return any time they asked if he could work it into his schedule.

Dear Candace: I was wondering what happened to Kristina Wagner who played Felicia on "General Hospital"? -Michelle Z. in Pennsylvania.

Dear Reader: Wagner is scheduled to return to "GH" on March 1.

In case you worried there were no more ideas to be mined for unscripted series, fear not: This new special proves there still are some left. Part 1 introduces diminutive salesman Glen, who stands roughly 4-1/2 feet tall and gets to choose among women his height or — in an eventual twist that rivals the late addition of the hunks in "Average Joe" — female contenders who are taller. Dani Behr is the host. The conclusion airs Feb. 23.

Founding cast member Barry Watson returns as Matt in the new episode "The Anniversary," although Ruthie (Mackenzie Rosman) is the only relative Matt wants to see. However, Lucy (Beverley Mitchell) discovers he's back in town — making her and her parents (Stephen Collins, Catherine Hicks) curious as to why.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The moment of truth arrives — a few of them, actually — for Randi in the season finale of this unscripted series. She learns whether she has fooled her family into thinking she plans to go through with a wedding to uncouth Steve, thereby winning $1 million. However, she's also destined to learn that she has been set up, since Steve is an actor and not a reality-show contestant like she is.

8 p.m. and TNT

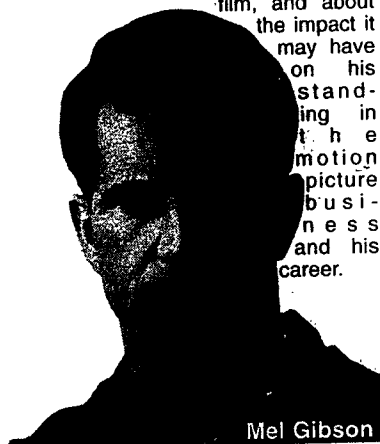

Former "Law & Order" regular Chris Noth battles criminals again as the star of this new drama movie, based on a novel by Anthony Bruno. Noth plays an undercover FBI agent who faces danger, along with his partner (Colm Meaney; "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine"), as he opposes underworld-backed loan sharks. The supporting cast includes Oscar winner Mercedes Ruehl ("The Fisher King"), Robert Patrick ("The X-Files") and Elliott Gould.

8:30 p.m. on 4-CBS

Charlie and Alan's (Charlie Sheen, Jon Cryer) competition for the affections of the same woman (guest star Jenna Elfman, "Dharma & Greg") ends when she chooses one of the brothers in "That Was Saliva, Alan," the conclusion of a new two-part episode. Smooth sailing isn't in the cards, though, since she reveals why she and her young daughter (guest star Juliette Goglia) have stayed on the move.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Mel Gibson won an Oscar for directing "Braveheart," but he has been stirring controversy for some time with his latest effort behind the cameras, "The Passion of the Christ." Diane Sawyer talks with him about the reactions of religious leaders — some of whom haven't even seen the movie — to the film, and about the impact it may have on his standing in the industry. In the meantime, he's been making a name for himself in the motion picture business and his career.

That '70s Show

Kelso (Ashton Kutcher) tries to play matchmaker for a police-academy peer (guest star Alyson Hannigan, "Buffy the Vampire Slayer") and Fez (Wilmer Valderrama) in the new episode "Sally Simpson." Eric (Topher Grace) is revealed to be the main reason for Red's (Kurtwood Smith) seemingly endless stress.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

Clark (Tom Welling) is not alone with powers anymore, since a new schoolmate (guest star Sarah Carter, "Black Sash") also appears to have them in the new episode "Obsession." They're happy to have each other as soulmates — her much more than him, leading her to try to get rid of everyone else to whom he's close, particularly Lana (Kristin Kreuk). Lana remains curious about Adam (guest star Ian Somerhalder).

7:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

It's All Relative

Liz and Bobby's (Maggie Lawson, Reid Scott) families mean well by pushing them to tie the knot, but the result could derail the couple's relationship in the new episode "A Long Day's Journey Into Leonard's." Bobby is especially hesitant to rush the nuptials. Philip (John Benjamin Hickey) pleads with Mace (Lenny Clarke) to help him get into the good graces of Mace's relative, a celebrated playwright.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The King of Queens

Two of this sitcom's stars show off their mates in the new episode "Damned Yanky." Steffiana De La Cruz, the fiancée of Kevin James, guest stars as Carrie's (Leah Remini) manicurist — whom Carrie approves to be a part of Doug's (James) fantasies as he recuperates from having an appendectomy. Carrie takes a mental vacation of her own with Doug's doctor (guest star Angelo Pagan, Remini's husband).

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The West Wing

Leo (John Spencer) recalls his trauma as a military pilot shot down over Vietnam in the new episode "An Khe." His memories are prompted by a White House-sanctioned mission to rescue U.S. soldiers downed by North Korean forces. C.J. (Allison Janney) matches wits with a conservative talk show host (guest star Jay Mohr) during a live telecast. The president (Martin Sheen) is edgy about having an official portrait done.

8 p.m. on HALL

Movie: Decoration Day

James Garner is excellent as retired judge Albert Finch in this 1990 Hallmark Hall of Fame movie. Perfectly content to live as a recluse, Finch's routine is disrupted by a childhood friend (Bill Cobbs). Gee (Cobbs) is slated to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery during WWII, but he adamantly refuses to accept it. Finch tries to convince Gee it's OK to let the world in. Ruby Dee, Laurence Fishburne and Judith Ivey co-star.

8 p.m. on TNN

Movie: The Krays

Twin brothers Gary and Martin Kemp, who were members of the music group Spandau Ballet, play a much more lethal pair of siblings in director Peter Medak's ("The Ruling Class") acclaimed 1990 drama. Ronald and Reggie Kray are willing to do whatever it takes to rise to the top of the London underworld in the 1960s. Billie Whitelaw ("The Omen") and Steven Berkoff ("Octopussy") co-star.

Marie (Doris Roberts) in "Liars." He initially recruits Debra (Patricia Heaton) and the twins to help him weasel out of the intended occasion. Robert (Brad Garrett) complicates things.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

The strangling death of a peace activist follows his clashes with police officers and a military veteran in the new episode "Veteran's Day." In the course of investigating, Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) uncover a previous dispute between the victim and the ex-soldier, who evidently considered the activist's views anti-American.

Movie: Planet of the Apes

The science-fiction classic is "reimagined" by director Tim Burton in this 2001 update. Mark Wahlberg plays an astronaut who crash-lands on a planet ruled by intelligent simians. A chimpanzee (Helena Bonham Carter, wearing a bounty of makeup) shows compassion toward him, but a vicious ape general (Tim Roth) remains dead-set against all humans.

Model Estella Warren co-stars as another captive of the apes.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Friends

Monica and Chandler (Courteney Cox Arquette, Matthew Perry) learn the background of their adoptive child's biological father — who may have been a murderer — in the new episode "The One Where Joey Speaks French."

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

CSI: Crime Scene Investigation

The mayor of Las Vegas, Oscar Goodman, guest stars as a lawyer representing a suspect (guest star D.B. Sweeney, "The Cutting Edge") in a double homicide in the new episode "Early Rollout." The victims were a millionaire and his wife, and the records of the wealthy man's business dealings yield a slew of clues. Series creator-producer Anthony E. Zuiker has a cameo as a security guard.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Frontline

With just about a month left until the deadline for income-tax filings, the new episode "Tax Me If You Can" traces the history of the tax shelter, which has cost the U.S. Treasury an estimated $50 billion per year. Correspondent Hedrick Smith probes ways in which some corporations and rich people have been able to avoid certain tax payments — while the average taxpayer has ended up footing the bill.

Saturday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: Cast Away

Tom Hanks earned another Oscar nomination by reteaming with "Forrest Gump" director Robert Zemeckis on this 2000 drama. The actor holds the screen by himself — or, more precisely, in tandem with a volleyball — for the bulk of the film. He plays a Federal Express worker stranded by a plane crash on an island for four years. Helen Hunt plays his girlfriend back home.

7 p.m. and AMC

Movie: She's Having a Baby

Written by 1980s teen-film director John Hughes, this 1988 comedy-drama stars Kevin Bacon and Elizabeth McGovern as newlyweds who marry at a young age. Jake (Bacon) must learn to grow into an upstanding family man — especially when he discovers his wife is pregnant. Alec Baldwin, William Windom and Holland Taylor ("The Practice") co-star.

7 p.m. on TNT

Movie: Outbreak

Transported to the United States by a monkey, a strain of the lethal Ebola virus makes an infected California town the center of considerable panic in director Wolfgang Petersen's 1995 thriller. Dustin Hoffman plays a scientist struggling to contain the illness while battling a related military plan to isolate the problem. Rene Russo, Morgan Freeman, Donald Sutherland, Kevin Spacey and Cuba Gooding Jr. co-star.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Antwone Fisher

Denzel Washington made his feature-directing debut with this earnest, true-life 2002 drama in which he plays a Navy psychiatrist treating the title character (Independent Spirit Award winner Derek Luke). Sailor Fisher exhibits unexpected moments of pure rage, necessitating his treatment. He hesitates at first to reveal the details of his tortured past, which ultimately — and painfully — flood forth.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Hack

A man (guest star Bruce Norris) disappears after jumping out of Olshansky's (David Morse) cab and being shot in the new episode "One for My Baby." The missing fare's wife (guest star Jane Krakowski) then seeks help from Olshansky, who learns that the man has an inoperable brain tumor. The plot thickens when the wife is found to be romantically involved with her husband's physician.

8 p.m. on ESPN

College Basketball

The Texas Longhorns have proven to be nearly unbeatable at home. Tonight, they hope to take that positive karma on the road in search of a win against Big 12 rival Oklahoma. Freshman P.J. Tucker and senior Brandon Mouton lead the Longhorns, who rely on the nation's top-scoring offense to out-gun opponents. Defensively, they'll likely key on Sooners' senior guard Jason Detrick, whose recent shooting slump led to Oklahoma's 1-3 Big 12 start.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

A convict (guest star Stephen Lang) sentenced for pedophilia breaks out of prison and stalks his former victim in "Escape." To find the criminal, Benson (Mariska Hargitay) teams with a federal marshal (guest star Craig Bierko) with whom she used to be involved romantically. The stakes rise when the escapee kidnaps his target, then takes Benson captive once she locates the fugitive.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

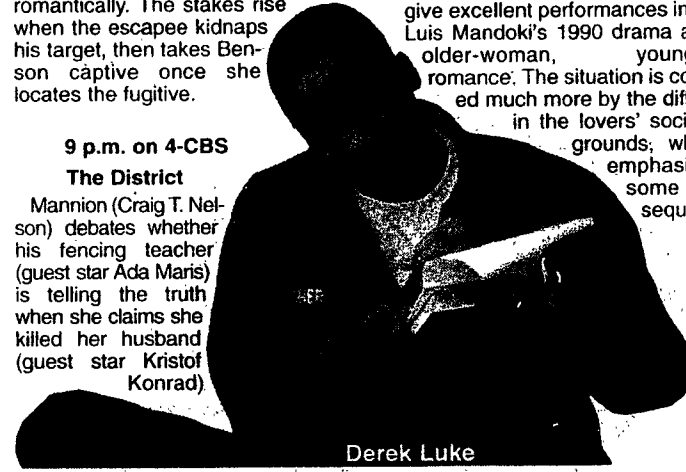

Mannion (Craig T. Nelson) debates whether his fencing teacher (guest star Ada Maris) is telling the truth when she claims she killed her husband (guest star Kristof Konrad).

in self-defense in the new episode "On Guard." Evidence suggests the murder may have been premeditated. DeBreno (Jonathan LaPaglia) has personal ties to a suspect in a drug probe.

9:25 p.m. on AMC

Movie: White Palace

Susan Sarandon and James Spader give excellent performances in director Luis Mandoki's 1990 drama about an older woman, younger-man romance. The situation is complicated much more by the differences in the lovers' social backgrounds, which are emphasized in some frank sequences.

Derek Luke

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"RUNAWAY JURY": The latest law thriller by novelist John Grisham to reach the screen, this drama benefits from an especially strong cast. Former New York roommates Dustin Hoffman and Gene Hackman star as professionals on opposite sides of a trial. Both are concerned with one juror (John Cusack) who has a personal agenda when a gun manufacturer is accused of culpability in a murder. Rachel Weisz and Bruce Davison co-star. DVD extras: audio commentary by director Gary Fleder; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes.  (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"DICKIE ROBERTS: FORMER CHILD STAR": Co-writer David Spade has the title role in this sporadically amusing comedy about an ex-actor determined to land a big comeback role. To prepare for his audition, he hires a family to take him in and show him the "normal" life he never had while he was a child performer. Mary McCormack ("Private Parts") and Craig Bierko (Broadway's "The Music Man") play the household heads; the most fun things in the movie are cameos by real ex-child stars such as Gary Coleman and Maureen McCormick ("The Brady Bunch"). DVD extras: audio commentaries by director Sam Weisman, Spade and co-

writer Fred Wolf; "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; music video.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"MASKED AND ANONYMOUS": The subject of this musical drama isn't really so anonymous, since legendary singer-songwriter Bob Dylan is the star and co-writer of the picture. He plays Jack Fate, a once-popular performer whose career has hit the skids. A benefit concert gives him the opportunity for a comeback. Dylan fans obviously will have the best time here, but others should appreciate the "who's who" cast that includes Jeff Bridges, Penelope Cruz, Jessica Lange, Angela Bassett, Bruce Dern and Ed Harris. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by director and co-writer Larry Charles; deleted scenes.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"THE PENTAGON PAPERS": During the Vietnam War, Daniel Ellsberg became a household name for his release of a top-secret Pentagon document that indicated military action could not resolve the conflict. Major newspapers printed the so-called Pentagon Papers, and Ellsberg was arrested and charged with theft, espionage and treason. This engrossing, made-for-TV drama stars James Spader ("The Practice") as Ellsberg, with Claire Forlani ("Meet Joe Black") as Ellsberg's girlfriend and Alan Arkin as his think-tank boss.  (Not rated: AS, P)

"DUMMY": Adrien Brody, the winner of an Oscar for "The Pianist," also has the lead role in this affecting comedy-drama about a man who tries to deal with his insecurities by channeling them into a ventriloquist's dummy. He hopes that voicing his doubts through a different mouth will give him more social confidence. The supporting cast includes Jessica Walter ("Arrested Development"), Ron Leibman, Milla Jovovich and Illeana Douglas. DVD extras: "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; outtakes.  (R: AS, P)

"ROSWELL: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": "Beverly Hills, 90210" meets "The X-Files" in this drama series (which began on Fox, then finished on UPN) based on a popular book series about Roswell, N.M., teenagers. Some of whom just happen to be descendants of the aliens who allegedly landed there half a century ago. Jason Behr and Shiri Appleby play Max and Liz, the alien boy and earthling girl who are mad about each other, but whose different backgrounds give new meaning to the term "star-crossed lovers." Katherine Heigl ("Bride of Chucky"), Brendan Fehr and William Sadler ("Die Hard 2") also star. DVD extras: audio commentaries by cast and production members; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes.  (Not rated: AS, P, V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"MATCHSTICK MEN" (Feb. 24): A con man's (Nicolas Cage) latest scheme is complicated by the arrival of his teenage daughter. (Alison Lohman), who wants to learn his trade. (PG-13: AS, P, V)

"PIECES OF APRIL" (Feb. 24): A young woman (Katie Holmes) pulls out all the stops to reunite her family at Thanksgiving in writer-director Peter Hedges' comedy-drama. (PG-13: AS, P)

"SPY KIDS 3D: GAME OVER" (Feb. 24): Adventurous young Juni (Daryl Sabara) plunges into a video game to rescue his trapped sister, Carmen (Alexa Vega). (PG: V)

Clark happily says 'Yes, Dear' to his CBS sitcom success

By John Crook

Anthony Clark cheerfully admits he hesitated before saying, "yes, dear" to his current CBS Monday sitcom gig.

After all, "Yes, Dear" - now in its fourth hit season, starring Clark and Jean Louisa Kelly as neurotic suburban parents Greg and Kim Warner - is quite a break in style for the likable Southern-born actor, best known for comedy that is both sophisticated and occasionally caustic.

"When I first read the script, I was thinking, 'Whaaaa? Me as a dad? What's that about?'" acknowledges Clark, 39 and unmarried himself. "I had never played an uptight, responsible character like this one, so I kept tossing the script away. I always played the loose, laid-back character. But since I thought we'd just do the pilot and that would be it, I thought at least it would give me a chance to play something different."

Defying some of the most toxic reviews of the 2000 fall TV season, "Yes, Dear" - which also stars Liza Snyder and Mike O'Malley - clicked with viewers and emerged as a bona fide hit almost immediately.

"Jeannie (Louisa Kelly) said to me the other day, 'You realize, out of every comedy pilot that was made our initial year, we are the only one that went to a second season,'" Clark notes. "I mean, 98 pilots were made that year. How can you tackle odds like that? And you have to perform quickly, or they will pull you fast."

"You're never going to please the critics, and I just don't get emotionally involved in that part of it. It's just as dangerous to believe them when they say you are great. You have to stay in the middle, stay focused. I guess it's when they aren't talking about you at all that it's time to worry."

And the actor isn't one to shrug off this kind of welcome, if unexpected, ratings success.

A native of Lynchburg, Va., Clark was a class clown in high school, using his comic skills as a defense mechanism against dealing with a less-than-happy situation at home, where he and his brother went through "some real Jerry Springer stuff" while being reared by a single mom after his parents divorced.

"Not hardcore Jerry, but definitely regular Jerry stuff," Clark clarifies quickly.

After graduation from high school, Clark entered the acting program at Boston's Emerson College, but soon found himself pulled into the city's burgeoning comedy club scene.

"Emerson College ... had such a long history of comedians like Steven Wright, Jay Leno and Denis Leary, David Cross, and Laura Kightlinger," Clark explains. "All of them had either graduated or were going there while I was a student."

Clark first stepped on a comedy club stage in Atlanta, where he scored an exhilarating success that gave him the confidence he needed to break into the bustling Boston scene.

"The first time I went onstage at a comedy club was the first time something clicked in my head and I thought, 'My God, I'm good at this, they like me!' And that was in the first five minutes, so it felt like a natural thing for me."

"I finished (college) with a bachelor of science in mass communications, because I figured a four-year degree in acting just wasn't going to cut it on some level, but I always wanted to use stand-up as a platform to acting. It was a way into show business that I happened to be good at."

His work at top-flight New York clubs such as Caroline's and Catch a Rising Star netted Clark an agent, and three weeks later he had been cast in his first movie, 1991's "Dogfight," opposite River Phoenix and Lili Taylor. That film was followed by a Broadway stint with Gary Sinise in "The Grapes of Wrath."

"Those first two jobs blew me out of the category where people were looking at me as just a stand-up," he says now.

A mid-'90s HBO comedy special propelled Clark into the national spotlight, and he signed a development deal with Castle Rock Entertainment and NBC. After failing to click with established TV production veterans, Clark turned to old Emerson classmate Max Mutchnick ("Will & Grace") and his writing partner, David Kohan, who submitted a spec script that became Clark's first series, "Boston Common."

"We were truly children, wandering around together and trying to figure out how to make a TV show, but I think some episodes of 'Boston Common' were just falling-over funny," Clark says in hindsight. "Then NBC moved us out of Thursday night after just six episodes, to Sunday, and that was the killer, or at least the beginning of the end, because they moved it like three times."
